SENATOR HILL TO DEDICATE HOSPITAL SUNDAY

Ceremony To Begin At 2:00 P.M. With Keynote Address

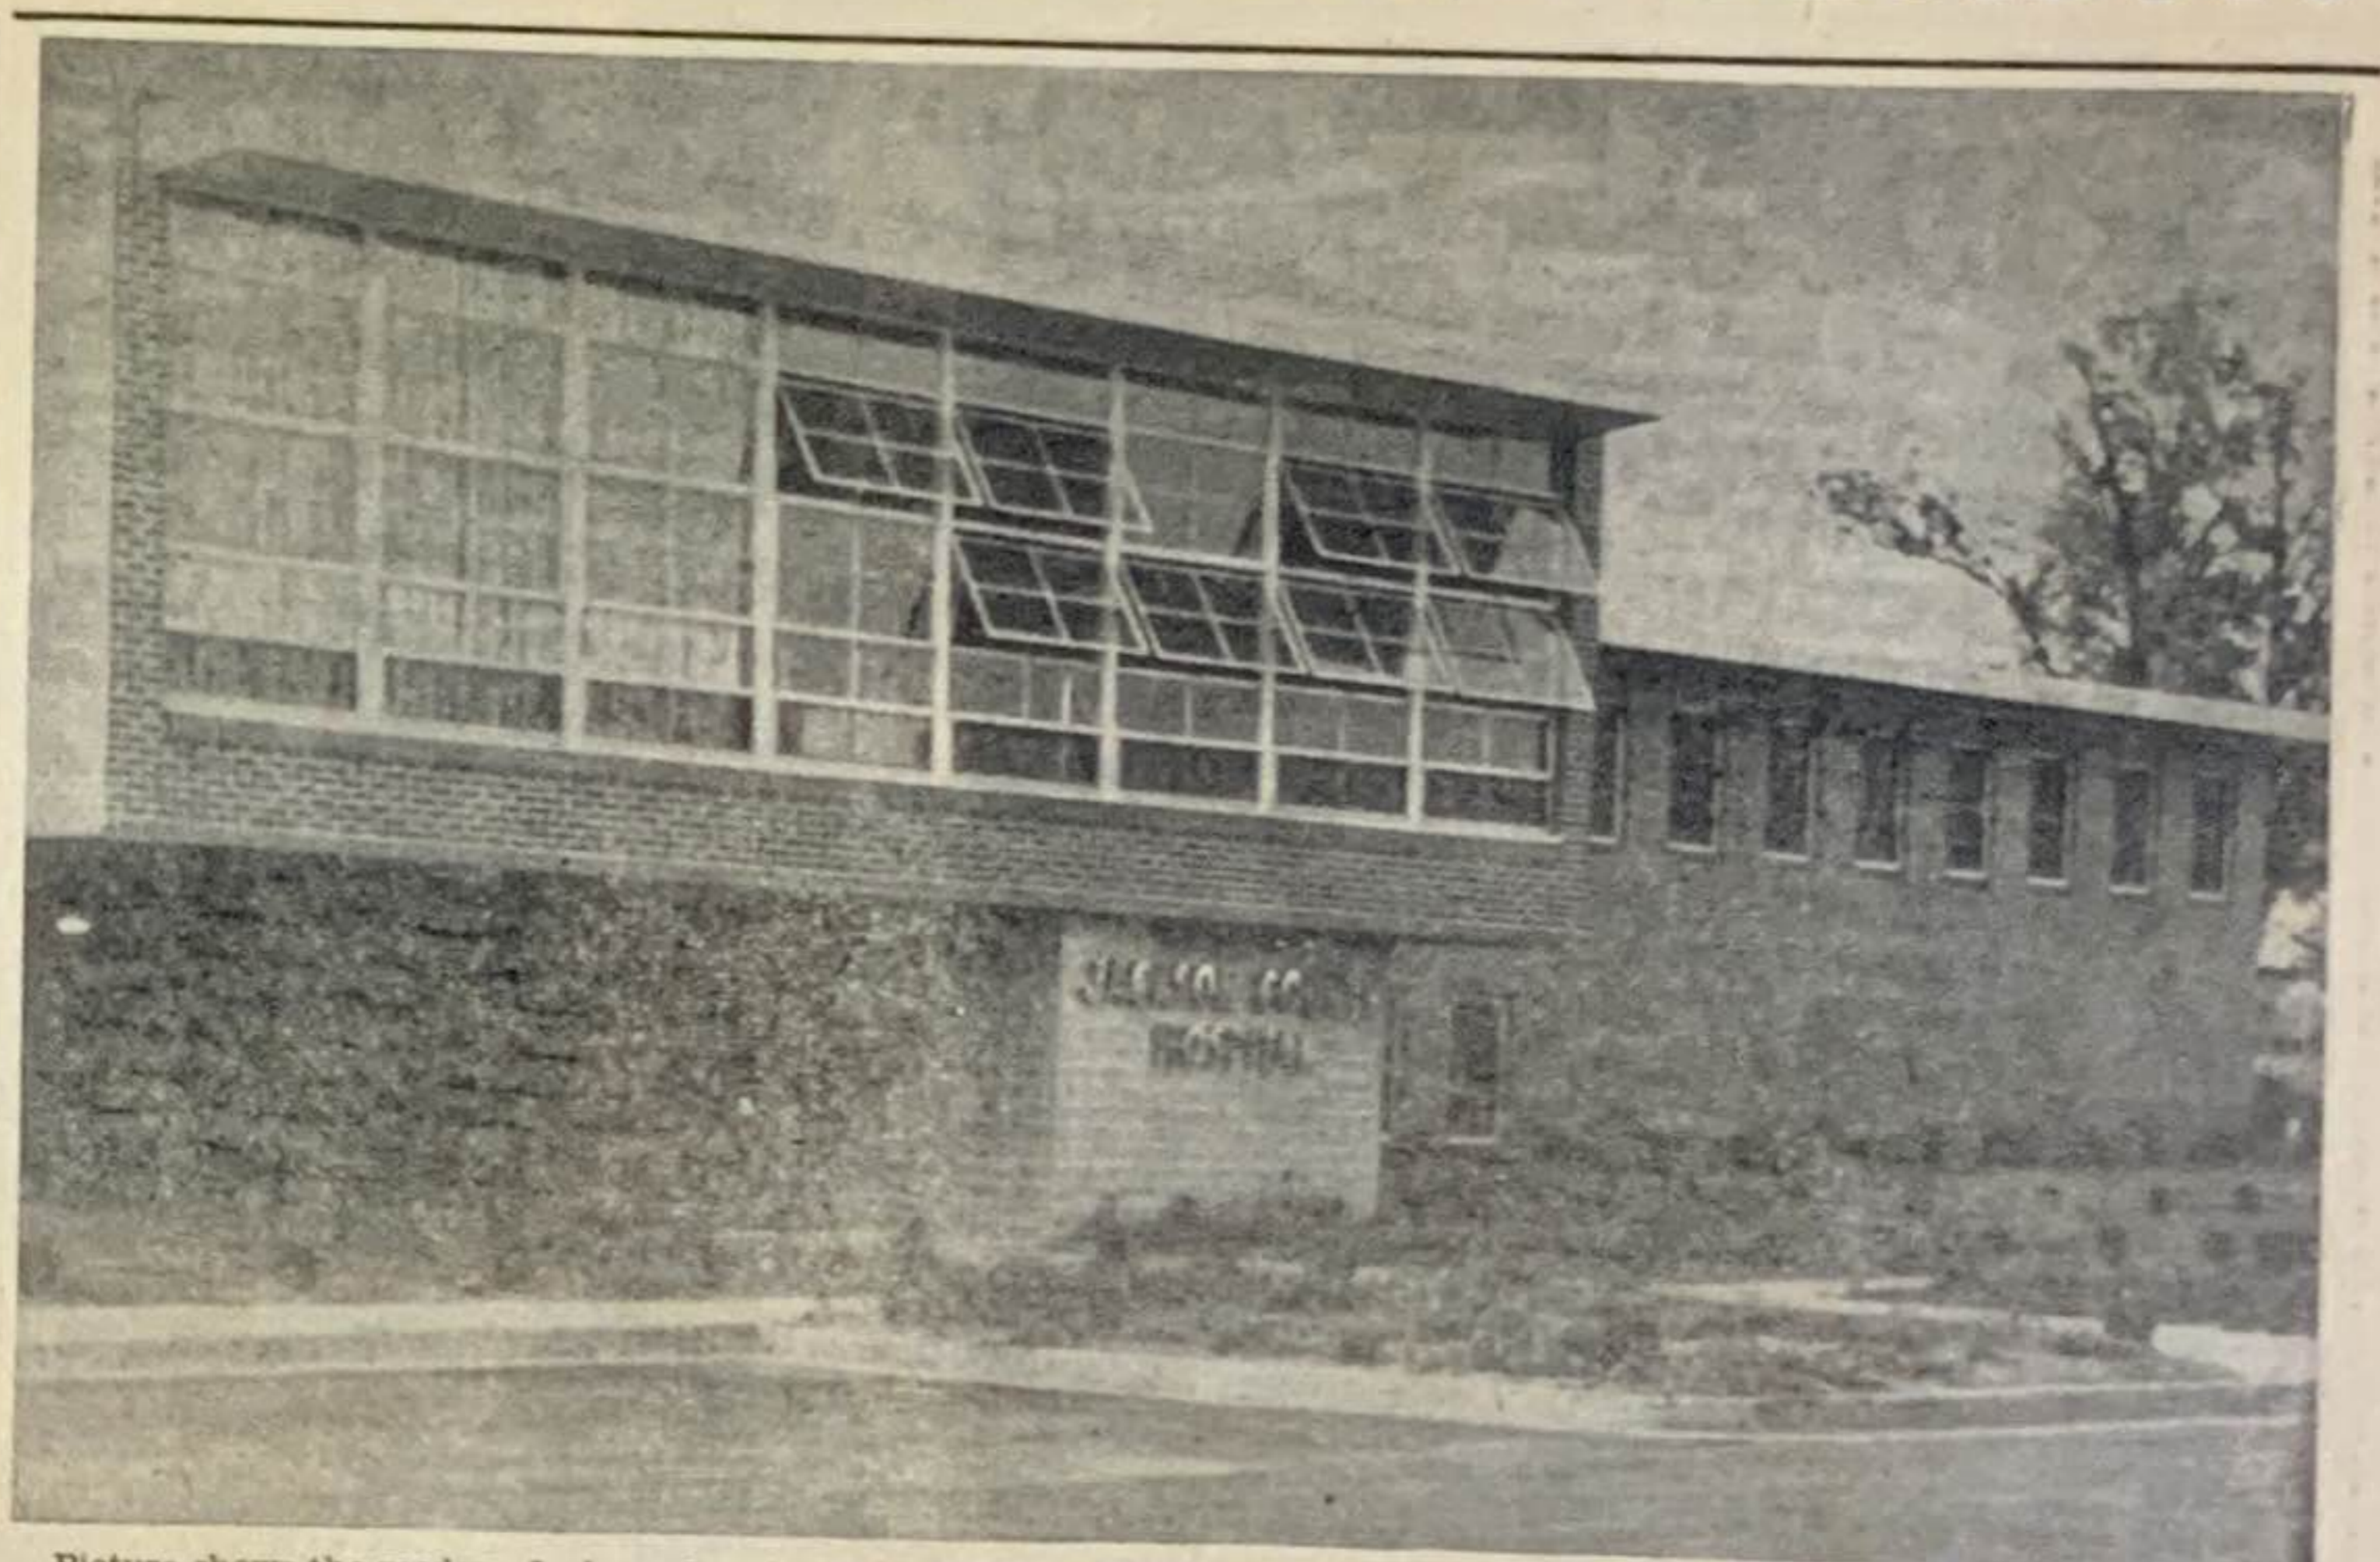

SENATOR LISTER HILL

Senator Lister Hill, veteran Alabama statesman and co-sponsor of the Hill-Burton Hospital Bill that is largely responsible for the beautiful Jackson County Hospital, will be in Scottsboro Sunday afternoon, August 28th, to officially dedicate the facility.

Senator Hill will be joined by many other Alabama notables to complete the program that will be the first step to full scale operation of the new hospital.

Ralph Hart is the administrator of the new Jackson County Hospital. His wide scope of hospital experience is responsible for many of the extra features of the hospital equipment and smooth plan of operation.

Picture shows the modern Jackson County Hospital that will be formally dedicated Sunday by Senator Lister Hill, co-founder of the Hill-Burton Hospital Bill that had a major part in the development of the new hospital. There is ample paved parking area in front and many shrubs and special lighting features enhance the new structure.

Colors To Be Given Back To Company 'B' National Guard

The colors of Company B, 151st Engineer Battalion, will be returned to the unit commander Friday at a ceremony at Huntsville, Col. Daley, who commanded the unit at Fort Campbell, Ky. in 1950, and who commanded the unit in Korea, will present the colors for all units of the 1169th Engineer Group, with headquarters at Huntsville, to Col. James O. (Pick) Johnson, present commander of the group.

When members of the Alabama National Guard returned from Korea in 1952, the original 151st Engineer Battalion, together with other units of the 1169th Group, remained on active duty in Korea, and retained the colors belonging to the unit. The 151st was reorganized in Scottsboro, but has been without colors since its reorganization. The Regular Army 151st, and other units of the 1169th, was deactivated from active duty in February of this year.

Captain Willis Henshaw, commanding officer of Company B, and Warrant Officer Howard Dawson, administrative assistant, will attend the ceremonies.

Company Clerk Is Needed At Armory In Scottsboro

The Scottsboro Unit of the National Guard needs a company clerk. If you are between the ages of 17 and 18½, can type with reasonable speed and can keep company records, you can qualify, and can make extra money while learning. The position calls for the rating of corporal, and if you do the job well, you can expect to be promoted to the rating when you have had enough experience to do the job.

The job, however, is not open to young non-veterans alone. If you are a veteran, with active duty in the Army, Navy, Air Corps, or Marine Corps, and are qualified as a company or unit clerk, you can have the job. If you held a rating up to and including corporal, you can enroll in the Guard with that rating.

There are other jobs open for both young men and for former servicemen, up to and including the grade of sergeant first class. If you have had experience and training in any of the many MOS vacancies now existing in Company B, 151st Engineer Battalion, or if you are a non-veteran under 18½ years of age, you are invited to visit or call the Scottsboro Armory and learn more about these vacancies. The phone number is 350-L.

Second, a free ambulance ride home for the mother and baby with the compliments of Word-Yates-Bolton Funeral Home. And, a free ambulance ride home for the first released patient with the best wishes of Scottsboro Funeral Home.

Then comes the loot. A $25.00 Savings Bond from J. C. Jacobs Banking Company. An Evenflo baby bottle sterilizer from Hodges Drug Store. Baby scales from McCamy Drugs. A baby book and bottle warmer from Peggy's Shoppe. Evenflo bottle insulators from Reid's Sundries.

Special free gifts for the baby and parents from Darwin's, The Quality Store, Hammer's, Proctor-Steeley Furniture Company and Guy Hollis TV and Appliance Center.

Chances are the old stork will have a real race come September 1st as the new Hospital opens and as you can tell, there's a pretty good reason.

Pat On The Back

In publishing a special edition such as the Jackson County Hospital Edition, there are many, many people who deserve a "pat on the back."

We wish to sincerely thank Administrator Hart for taking of his time to help set up the pictures, provide the information for the news stories and many other details.

Most of all we wish to thank the many merchants and firms who have made it possible for us to publish this edition. There are countless others, and we wish to thank all who had a part.

Last but not least, the mechanical staff of the Sentinel who went to no length in producing one of the best quality newspapers ever published.

There are over 48 pictures that were taken for this paper. These pictures were all staff photos and produced in the Sentinel photographic department. There are many hands and many hours in this completed product. We humbly dedicate it to you, our readers and people of Jackson County.

Important Bills Face Legislature

As the regular session of the House of Representatives nears a close in Montgomery, Jackson County Representative Leroy Gist reports that many important bills will be considered.

Mr. Gist states that the Legislature has just passed the education bills needed to give us a vast educational program. "It is my sincere belief that these bills will be approved by the people if all interested people will put their heads together and push," he said.

"These bills provide that the teachers will start receiving their pay raises at once. This simply means that if the bills do not pass the people, the Legislature will return immediately to find revenue to support the appropriation."

"Another bill of importance to the people of Jackson County is a bill to aid highway employees. This bill simply means that a resident of Jackson County will be hired to work the roads of this county instead of hiring persons from another county. A local register would be set up instead of people coming from a state register."

It goes on to say, "A person can be promoted from the local register instead of waiting on the state register. The bill will only affect counties where the state builds and maintains roads and will not affect persons now working who are out of county residents."

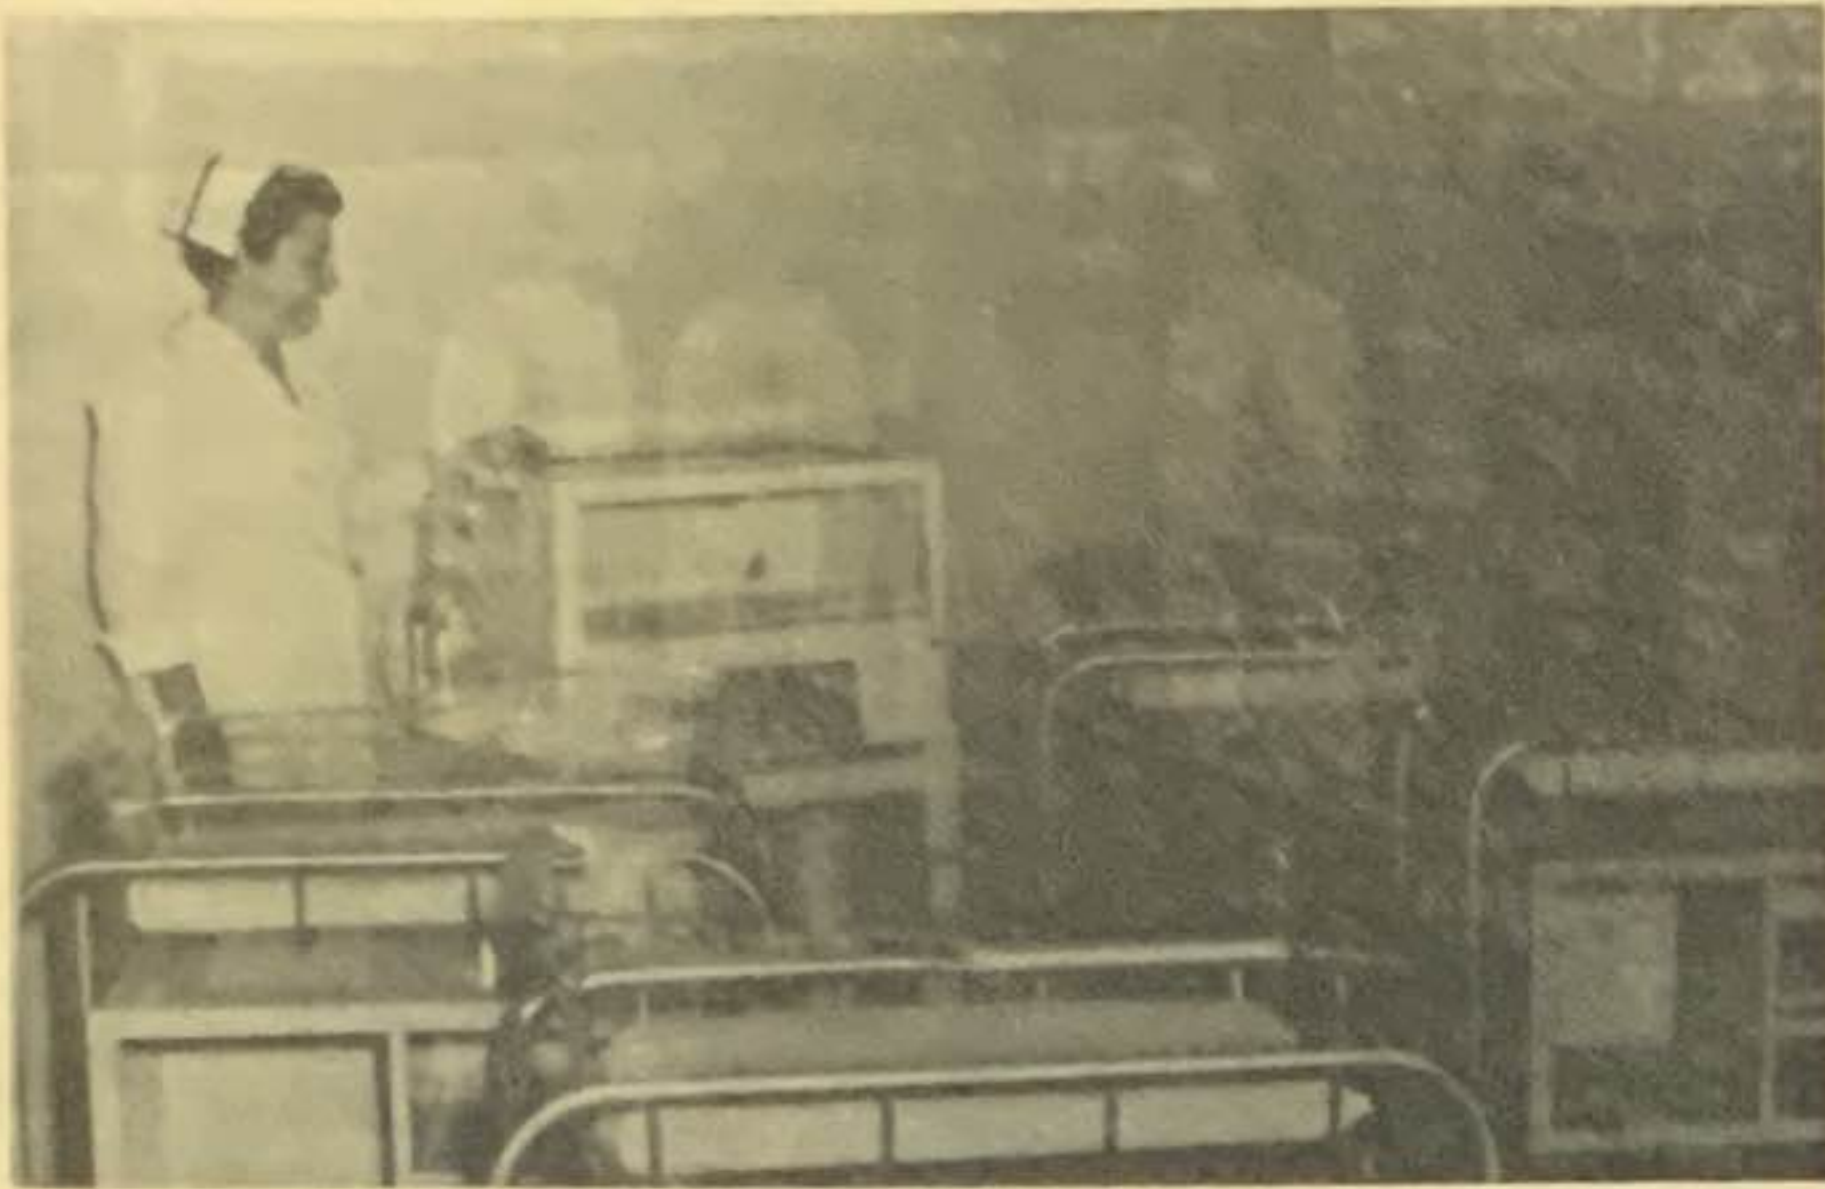

Mr. Gist continued, "Both Representative Money and myself are sponsors of this bill."

"Last on the agenda is a raise for retired teachers. The retired teacher can look forward to an increase in the amount of pension they are now receiving. The average teacher on retirement gets $62.50 monthly. A bill passed the house last week to raise that amount of $100.00."

Mr. Gist states in his own words, "A person who has spent forty years in the classroom and most of that time when the going was really tough, deserves more than a flimsy $62.50 monthly after they are forced to retire." This bill is conditional on the passage of the educational program.

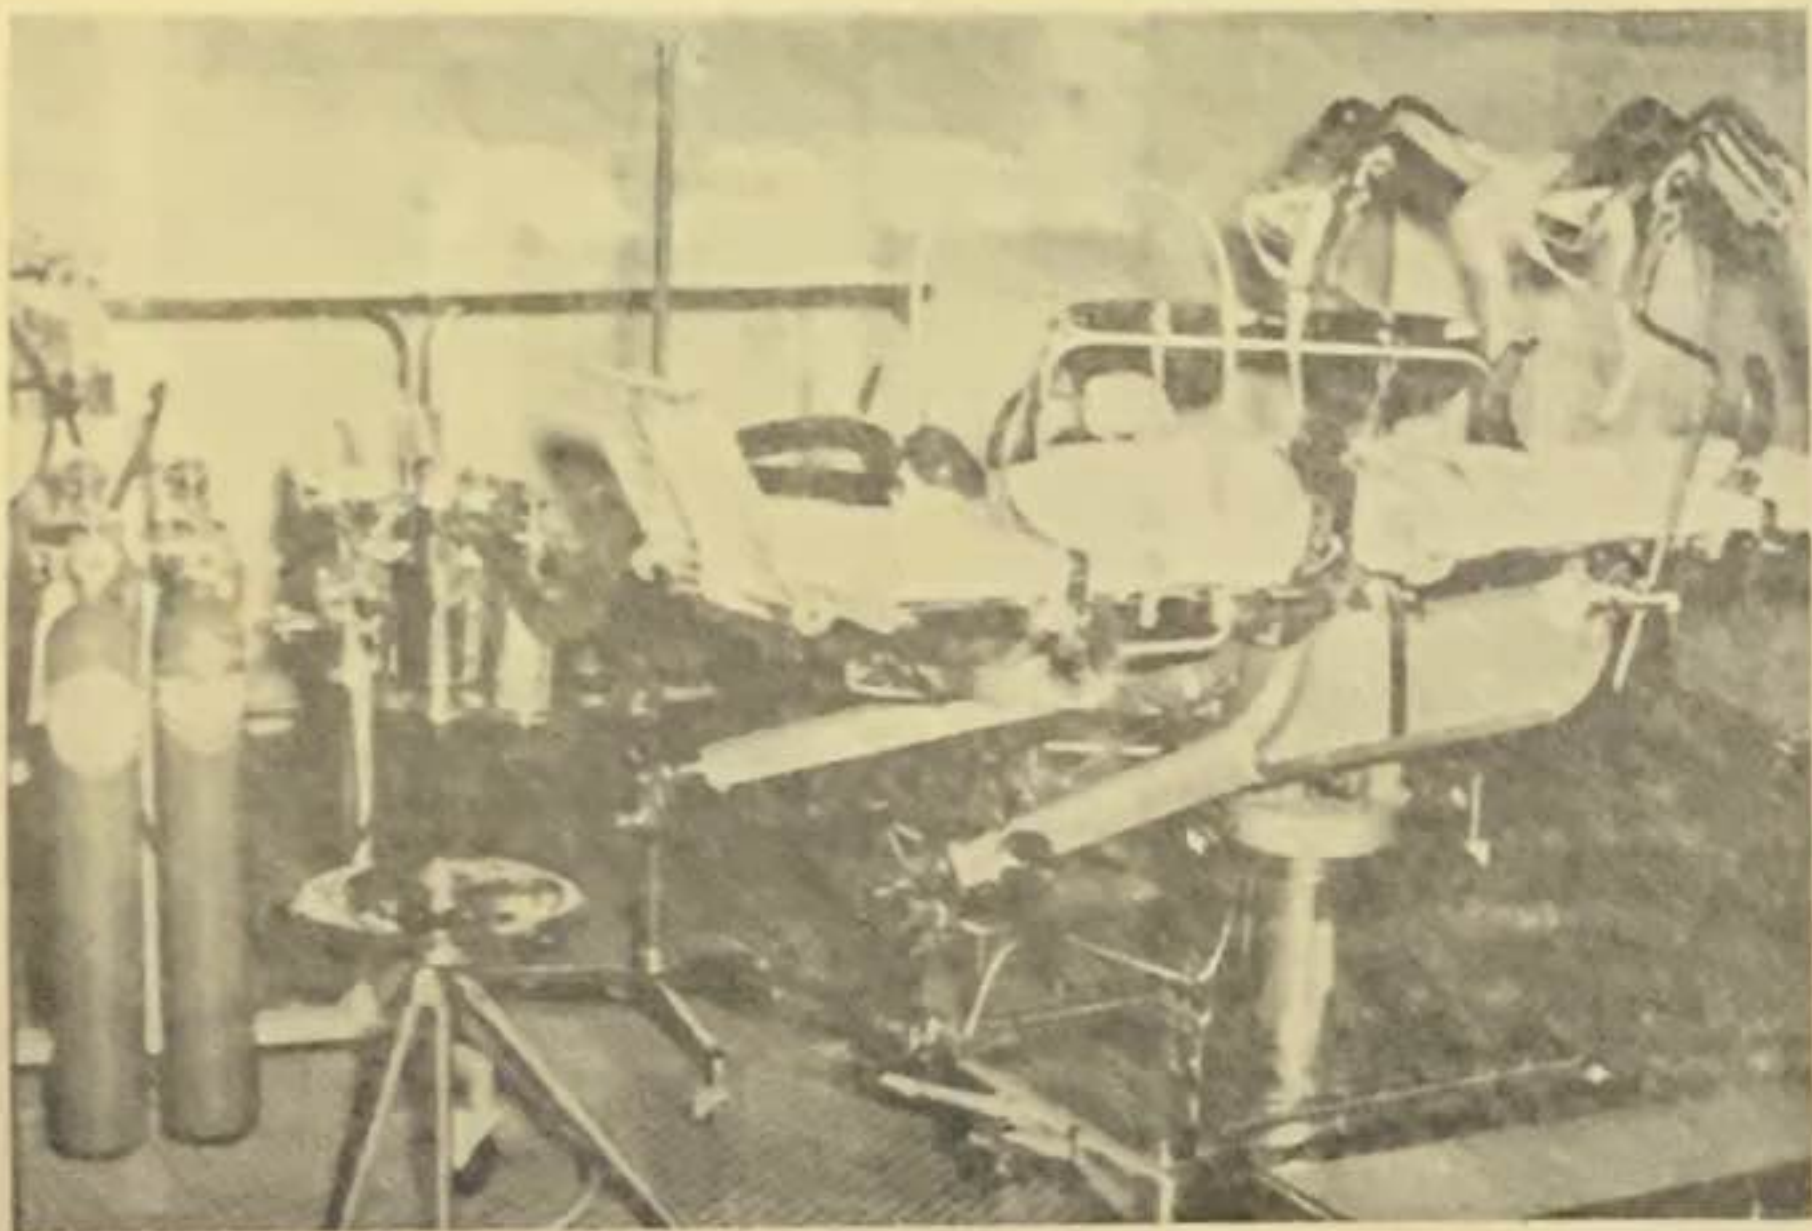

Both Representatives Gist and Money are expected to be on hand for the formal dedication of the new Jackson County Hospital in Scottsboro next Sunday.

TVA LETTER

TVA reported today that for the sixth consecutive year no cases of malaria traceable to TVA reservoirs had been found in the Tennessee Valley. The report followed completion of investigations by the U. S. Public Health Service and state and local health agencies during calendar year 1954.

malaria started after 1934 when an average of 28.39 percent of populations in a reservoir area in north Alabama showed evidence of the disease. Incidence, TVA said, continued to drop until in 1948 it was 0.09 percent, and in 1949 it was zero.

Starting in 1934, the method used to investigate prevalence of malaria consisted of making house-to-house surveys, taking blood samples, and investigating suspected cases. In 1950 a year-round program of cooperative surveillance began between state health agencies, the U. S. Public Health Service, and TVA.

Under this arrangement, all rumored or suspicious cases of malaria are investigated by state or local health department personnel, and the Public Health Service follows up with individual case work when blood slides show confirmed or presumed malaria.

TVA said that it was through such investigations that the Tennessee Valley's five cases of confirmed malaria in 1954 were found to have originated in Korea. TVA's role in the program is to channel the reports it receives of suspected cases of malaria to official health agencies and to assist in investigations.

State health departments had already been fighting malaria for a long time before TVA. It was known that the malaria carrier in the Tennessee Valley area was the female Anopheles quadrimaculatus mosquito which bites a malaria-infected individual and then bites another victim, passing the malaria germ on to him. It was also known that impoundments in the southeastern United States often created situations favorable for the production of this mosquito and that increased prevalence of malaria frequently resulted.

When TVA was created in 1933, preventative measures were started immediately. A house-to-house survey in north Alabama revealed that as high as 60 percent of the inhabitants in certain areas suffered from malaria, with a 28 percent average for the general area surveyed. Water control structures were designed and constructed to allow for naturalistic control methods; reservoir timber was cleared; provision was made for draining low areas around the impoundments. Many houses were mosquito-proofed; then, with the advent of DDT, mosquito proofing was discontinued and residual spraying with DDT was started. In 1951 residual spraying of houses was discontinued.

Bases were established early for the application of larvicides to areas expected to produce malaria mosquitoes. Applications were made by hand sprayer, by boat and truck units, and by aircraft over extensive flat areas. First application of DDT by airplane in this country was made on Pickwick reservoir, under sponsorship of the Office of Scientific Research and Development. Assistance was provided by TVA to the armed services during World War II in developing techniques for applying DDT from the air. TVA designed and installed DDT dispersing equipment on a number of aircraft for malaria control work in the United States and in other countries.

TVA's larvicidal work today is accomplished by the use of helicopters. Only on rare occasions is hand application restored to TVA says its most effective single control measure is water level management. By raising and lowering water levels at different times of the year on carefully worked-out schedules, a winter's accumulation of drift and floatage is stranded; the growth of marginal vegetation is retarded; and mosquito larvae are stranded or floated out to be killed by natural enemies such as top minnows.

4-H Fragments

By Louise Walker, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent

If you should be asked to describe a 4-H Club meeting, how would you do it?

I would describe it in just three words, "Democracy in action." For it is where rural youths voluntarily meet to make plans for improving their Heads, Hearts, Hands, and Health.

Through individual project work the club member develops himself and becomes the owner of an enterprise.

Through membership in the club he learns to understand his part as a young citizen in the community. He learns this as he sings and plays and votes with the members of his club.

This month the 4-H Clubs of Jackson County are reorganizing and electing officers. The following officers were elected by the girls' clubs last week:

Larkinsville: President, Carolyn Hall; Vice-President, Carol Maples; Secretary, Una Arnold; Reporter, Betty Wright; Song Leaders, Shirley and Fannie Russell; Gameleaders, Nancy Beard and Willa Dean Dalton.

Dutton Elementary: President, Pat Black; Vice-President, Shirley Pittman; Secretary, Carolyn Deerman; Reporter, Linda Strickland; Song Leaders, Dorris Traylor and Carrie Lee Shelton; Gameleaders, Joan Gann and Lucille Long.

Dutton Junior: President, Peggy Shirley; Vice-President, Brenda Phillips; Secretary, Jay Nix; Reporter, Gail Martin; Song Leaders, Nina Jo Green and Linda Sue Haynes; Gameleaders, Lyvonne Headrick and Glenda Battles.

Dean's Chapel: President, Martha Ann Graham; Vice-President, Floyd Ray Wilson; Secretary, Ann Storey; Reporter, Junior Holland; Songleaders, Ann Aultman and Larry Slay; Gameleaders, David Story and Benny Hawkins.

Macedonia: President, Virginia Ann Johnson; Vice-President, Marga Ruth Wilborn; Secretary, Juanita Shavers; Reporter, Phyllis Payne; Song Leaders, Barbara Carter and Carolyn Johnson; Gameleaders, Linda Ray Culpepper and Brenda Patterson.

Section Sr.: President, Gracie Mitchell; Vice-President, Marilyn Medlock; Secretary, Betty Mitchell; Reporter, Barbara Jones; Song Leaders, Barbara Lackey and Brenda Kirby; Gameleaders, Phyllis Thomas and Glenda Gregg.

Teachers who will serve as the local leaders of these clubs are: Mrs. Ruby Harper, Larkinsville; Mrs. Bernice Powell, Dutton Elementary; Miss Jane Higginbotham, Dutton Junior; Mrs. Winslow Thomas, Dean's Chapel; Mrs. J. M. Thomas, Macedonia; Mrs. Armie Hambrick, Section Senior. All have served previously except Mrs. Hambrick.

This is the first year we have had a senior club at Section, but 4-H work is not new to the members of this club, since all of them had belonged to other 4-H Clubs and merely transferred to Section at the beginning of the term. With so many trained members, this club should accomplish great things this year.

Well, well, so the Editor finally "made front page" in his own paper. He must be mighty proud of the pic of his son, granddaughter, great-granddaughter, and himself in last week's Sentinel. Of course he's crazy about his grandchildren but to have a great-grandchild is something to crow about. Congratulations galore are certainly in order.

For an example of "utter calm," the ribbon belongs to Mrs. Edna Donovan. The oil "gusher" brought in on her land last week would have been cause enough for most of us to go nuts with joy. The lady, according to press dispatches, seems plain "indifferent" about the whole affair. Says she would be the same "six and seven" if she had a million bucks. She explained that "six and seven" meant "plain everyday folks." No doubt about it, Mrs. Donovan is the least excited of all the folks around Citronelle, Ala. What self-control!

They placed Governor Frank Lausche of Ohio in "stocks" when he showed up at Canton's sesqui-centennial sans beard. The kangaroo court which tries such cases never fails to convict. The incident brought back memories of "49'ers Day" in Rock Springs, Wyoming, in 1934. The Old Browser had to do some tall explaining as to why he was in town while kerless. He "got by" and "got out" also, and pronto.

"The kiss of the sun for pardon, the song of the birds for mirth—one is nearer God's heart in a garden, than anywhere else on earth." After the flowers have been watered and the shadows begin to show all about, it is good to rest in the garden and remember His benefits. Only one who has experienced many times the hour of fading light could have written the lines which are in quotes. You can almost hear the flowers say "thank you," as the cool spray of the hose falls on parched limbs and roots. It is indeed a blessed hour.

According to the Cincinnati Enquirer, the first thing many a newspaper will do on resurrection morning will be to check his tombstone for typographical errors. Force of habit, I reckon, but he at least can't blame himself. He sure never saw the first proof.

This plan to "mess around" in outer space—if it's really possible—just don't have a place in my thinking. Of course the idea sort of makes one wonder what's out there but as for trying to find out, I just ain't interested. There are a mighty lot of places on this planet that we still know little about. Seems to me they ought to come first. Huh?

I'm wrapping up the column a bit shy this week—a short haul as it were—and perhaps the readers won't mind wading through a shortened version. Now and then a "breather" is good for all of

I always plan a lot more than the space will stand. Naturally the majority is out of date by the time the next stint is due. Remember this: The "panning" is just as readily received as "posies." As the situation now stands, the voters of Alabama will go to the polls in December and vote on a constitutional amendment to put in force a new tax, called the "gross income tax", and referred to as the Goodwyn Plan.

Many of the state's newspapers, especially the dailies, are already predicting that the amendment will not be voted in. Most of these papers strongly criticize the action of the legislature, calling the measure, "clumsily" written, "vicious," "dangerous", "hastily written", "confusing", "burdensome thrown at the people in haste", and other unflattering adjectives. I do not care at this time to discuss the manner in which the Goodwyn Bill was handled in the legislature, but I do not agree with some of the things that have been said about the measure.

The important thing is that this is the measure that had been put to us as the means of raising money for the schools, and it is up to us to decide whether we want to pass the amendment, or to let schools continue to suffer. In other words, we must accept this tax, or not have the additional money needed for the operation of schools. How much longer can we go on without doing something about money for schools? The University of Alabama recently revealed that only about one third of all the requests for teachers this year could be filled, and many vacancies exist in the state, in addition to many positions now filled by teachers with temporary certificates.

If the legislature had bungled the job, it is the fault of the people for electing them, and for not seeing that they did the "right kind of a job. That horse is stolen, and there is no use in sitting and moaning about it. We have to do the best we can with the chances we have.

Nothing is to be gained by ranting and raving about the legislature. Now is the time to discover the merits and objections to the Goodwyn Plan, weigh that against the welfare of our children, and reach a decision. Let the bill speak for itself, whether we like the legislature or not, and whether we think they acted properly in passing the bill. Arousing a lot of suspicion by criticizing the legislature will gain nothing, and will only tend to cloud the issue and help to defeat it in December.

Governor Folsom, whose predictions are not infallible, says that the amendment to add the tax will pass if the "right kind of educational program" (not referring to the school program, but to a program to influence people to vote for the measure) is carried out.

He has not indicated that he will actively participate in this program. Representative Leroy D. Gist has stated that he will do all he can to get people in Jackson County to support the amendment. One thing is certain. The amendment will not pass unless a lot of work is done to influence voters to support it.

Like it or not, the Goodwyn Plan is the only means we have at the moment, and is the only question to be decided now, so it is our responsibility to decide whether we wish to vote for it, or leave schools where they are. We must make this decision without knowing that the legislature, even if called into a special session next year, would do anything better in the way of raising money for schools. Whatever they might do would be second best, at least in their opinion, for it stands to reason that they chose the means they deemed best for the first attempt. We must make this decision without knowing that they would do anything at all if this fails. Many have indicated that they would favor a special session, and would adopt the program they could adopt. They haven't they had plenty of time to decide what should be done. I had intended to be disappointed, but I am not permitted to do so. The bill included the money which may seem odd, but more to it than meets the eye will get around to that later date.

See you at the Farm Barbecue Tuesday.

PISGAH VO-AG ENROLLMENT ANNOUNCED

Vocational agriculture class at Pisgah High School will have total enrollment of 67 this year, according to Pruet, local vo-ag instructor.

Nationally, Pruet said, more than 400,000 farm boys and rural public high schools are in the country will enroll in fall, or continue their vocational agriculture course designed to fit them for the job of modern farming.

Pruett explained that selecting the vocational agriculture course of study opens classroom periods a day in agriculture under teacher instruction. The students are required to carry out projects on their own or their parents' and are encouraged to do those projects and build equity that will see them established in farming.

Vo-ag students are the best known as members of Future Farmers of America, their national organization. FFA has approximately 100 local chapters sponsored by high school vocational agriculture departments. The national organization is sponsored by the school vocational agriculture departments. The national organization is sponsored by the cultural Education Branch of the Office of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Activities sponsored by FFA provide a powerful stimulus to the farm boys to study and work harder. At the same time, Future Farmers are meeting, working with people outside the usual small circle of friends, building confidence in themselves, learning more about the complexities of modern citizenship, picking up many new ideas on living also. Although these activities and their regular chapter meetings, they learn to speak in public, and to follow parliamentary procedure.

Pictures Reveal Modern Facilities of New Hospital

Fracture Room Has New X-ray Setting Equipment

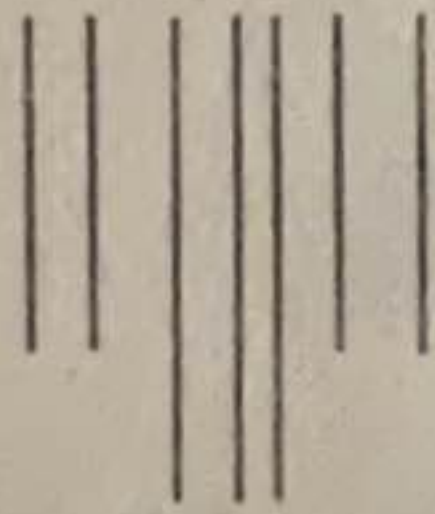

Kitchen Facilities Will Accommodate Up To 70 Beds

The fracture room of the new hospital is equipped with a movable X-ray device that allows the doctor to actually see that the broken limbs are in proper place before the cast is applied. This is one of the many features of the fracture room. Special table allows the setting of any type fracture.

The spacious kitchen at the new hospital is designed to take care of up to 70 beds with little if any expansion. Equipment is modern in every respect and Mrs. Norma Peters will be on hand to help feed the patients and follow the strict doctors' diets. Both photographs show features of the new kitchen.

Pernicious Anemia Cannot Be Cured

DON'T BE MISLED by the quacks and charlatans who claim to cure pernicious anemia. The most contemptible person in the world is the one who will sacrifice public health, comfort, and happiness for his own financial gain. A patient who has pernicious anemia is deficient in red blood cells. New red blood cells can be developed by a process with which your physician is thoroughly familiar. The process is constant and does not effect a cure. It does, however, enable the patient to complete a normal span of life. Always consult your physician in times of illness. Then bring his prescriptions to us to be filled.

JOE STARNES RECEIVES TOP NAT'L GUARD HONOR

(Guntersville Advertiser)
Joe Starnes Sr. of Guntersville was honored at the national guard camp at Ft. McClellan last week with presentation of the state's highest award, the Alabama Distinguished Service Medal. Two men, both retired colonels, received the award. The other was J. Jackson Sneed, Talladega city school superintendent for 8 years, who was cited for his initiative in organizing national units.

They were the third and fourth persons to receive the medal. The first went last year to Maj. Gen. Walter J. (Crack) Hanna for his handling of the Phenix City investigation and the second to Lt. Gen. Alexander Bolling, Third Army commander, for his work with the national guard.

The medals were presented by Maj. Gen. William D. Partlow Jr., the Alabama adjutant general. The presentations were made during a parade of 3,000 guardsmen.

Col. Starnes, Guntersville lawyer and former congressman for 10 years, was honored for his more than 30 years of service as a national guardman. Author of the state's military code and a University of Alabama Law graduate, he was instrumental in promoting rifle marksmanship in state guard units.

Col. Starnes is a graduate of the infantry field officer course and the command and general staff school. Like Col. Sneed he is a veteran of both World Wars.

FERGUSON-MATTHEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Matthews of Hollywood, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Flora Matthews, to William Marien Ferguson of Scottsboro, on July 22, 1955, with the Rev. Herman O. Bowman performing the double ring ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Olan Winger were their only attendants.

The bride is a graduate of Jackson County High School, and is now employed by Patrick Lumber Co. in Scottsboro.

The couple are now residing on Scottsboro Rt. 1, where the groom is engaged in farming.

Veterans' Column
State Dept. of Veterans' Affairs

Members of Counseling Committee to provide counseling for Korean Veterans in Jackson County:
HICKS, Delbert, Superintendent of Education;
CARGILE, David L., Veterans' Coordinator;
BAKER, Vance, State Employment Service;
McCRARY, David S., Judge of Probate;
BANKSTON, Ingram W., Medical Doctor;
LEE, J. A., Attorney-At-Law;
GEREN, A. U., Veterans' Service Officer.

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to four questions of interest to former servicemen and their families:

Q. A friend of mine, on VA's pension rolls, is entitled to an additional amount of money because he is so helpless that he requires constant aid and attention. Will he receive his additional allowance even though his mother provides this aid?

A. Yes. He may receive the additional allowance even though a member of his family provides the necessary services. It is not necessary for him to hire an attendant in order to qualify for the payments.

Q. I understand that if a veteran breaks two appointments for VA outpatient medical treatment, he will not be entitled to further treatment. I broke two appointments, but each time I gave VA at least two days' notice. Will I be barred from further treatment?

A. Since you gave VA at least 24 hours' advance notice, you will not be barred from further treatment. The bar applies only when veterans break appointments without prior notice and without good reason for doing so.

Q. I am going to school less than half time under the Korean GI Bill. At what rate am I using up my GI training entitlement?

A. VA considers that you are using your GI training entitlement at quarter time rate. For example, if your course lasts for a year, you will have used up one-quarter of a year's entitlement, or three months.

Q. I applied for disability compensation a couple years ago. VA asked me to report for a physical examination, but I never showed up. I let the entire matter drop. Now I would like to follow through. What should I do?

A. You must file a new application, since VA has considered that you have abandoned your original claim. Should your new claim be approved, payments may begin as of the date of the new application—not the old one.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Isaiah 55; Jeremiah 23; 29; Ezekiel 36; Revelation: Reading: Jeremiah 23:14-22

Promises of God

Lesson for August 21, 1955

MANY Christians today become confused when they read the prophecies of the Old Testament. They do not seem to be either plain or profitable, because they are written in a strange style and the reader has no way of knowing, without help, just where and why and when and to whom these words were first spoken or written. This column is much to short a space for straightening out the tangles in even one chapter. The thing to bear in Dr. Foreman's mind is that there is enough in Scripture that is plain to any man, enough to give him all he needs to know about God and his will for us. This column this week will consider one general thought: the promises of God, as they are found in the pages of the prophets particularly.

The Prophet
The promises of God are never made directly, as by a loudspeaker in the sky. The same promise may be made to many persons; but not all at once. The message first takes shape under the skull of one man, a holy, sensitive man, with spiritual insight, generally with great courage and persistence; in short, a prophet. We do not know for certain just what the process is by which a divine truth gets into the human mind of the prophet; but when first the divine truth enters the human sphere, it comes as an idea, a thought, in some prophet's mind. Sometimes more than one prophet may say the same thing, as when Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel were all predicting the return of the Jews to Jerusalem. Sometimes the prophet stands entirely alone. But the prophet is like the lookout in the crow's nest of a ship, sighting the dim landfall before any one on deck can see it.

The Promise
Sometimes the signal the prophet's keen spirit caught from on high spelled disaster; sometimes it was like "news behind news," a commentary on the why of events in past or present. But often, indeed more often than anything else, the message of the prophet is a promise. You can sum up all the promises there are into one sentence: God is good; he desires the good of all his children; and he will bring good to pass. One writer in the New Testament suggests that the prophets did not always understand their own messages; they were like radio receivers crossed by static. Be that as it may, we know from reading the Gospels that the people who read the prophets, even the professional interpreters, did not always understand what they read. The promises were set in obscure language, often in poetry. One feature however is clear: The focus and center of the prophet's hope and dream was the Messiah. It is true, their descriptions were so misread that when Jesus Christ came, most of his fellow-countrymen, measuring him by the literal words of these promises, did not recognize him. But these were those who did. The Christian discovers that all the best good that God desires for his children is summed up in Christ and what he does for men.

The Present
What can a Christian today do with the promises passed on by the prophets? Some of them refer no doubt to events long since past, as when Ezekiel and Jeremiah predicted the destruction of Babylon. The Christian can take such promises to support his faith that God does rule in the history of men; that his decrees are certain, his foreknowledge sure. Some of the promises are still unfulfilled, as when a prophet predicts the utter destruction of evil from this earth and the coming of a time of universal peace. A Christian can live by such hope even when (just as in the prophet's own days) the hope seems out of reach entirely. Where the prophet speaks of God's Servant the Coming One, we can use such promises to deepen our understanding of what Christ is to mean to the world. But every way in a while, in reading the prophets, one discovers that spans past, present and future. It was a promise made good long ago; it will come true in centuries to come; it is true this present hour. Such a promise is to be found, for instance, in Isaiah 52:7.

SHORT STORY

Mahomet's Advice

By William L. Roper

"WHAT on earth is the matter with you, Grady?" Shirley exclaimed. "You look as if you'd just received word the end of the world was due in fifteen minutes."

Grady Monroe smiled grimly. "Oh, it's not quite that soon. In fact, I've got six days."

"Six days?" Shirley's big blue eyes studied him with a puzzled expression.

"Shirley, your Uncle Dave has told me I must sell that stock of six dozen Red Head hammers by the first of September, or look for employment elsewhere. He said he was testing my judgment last spring when he let me act as buyer. Oh, he's really burned up about certain items that are clogging the shelves."

"Then we won't dare get married unless—"

Grady nodded. "Not unless I sell the hammers or find another job."

"We might consult a horoscope," Shirley suggested, her face brightening. "That's what I usually do when I'm undecided about something."

Grady frowned. "Yeah, I remember. That's where we got that screwy tip to stock up on hammers."

Shirley opened her handbag and took out a slip of paper. "Look,

3-Minute Fiction

Grady shook his head dubiously. "Whoever heard of peddling hammers door-to-door?"

Grady, she said. Her eyes sparkled. "I just got this horoscope at Carter's newsstand. Let's see if it offers a clue."

Grady smiled and took the slip of paper. Unfolding it, he read solemnly:

"When the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the mountain."

"Don't you get it?" Shirley said. "It means if customers don't come in and buy your hammers, you must go out and sell them."

"You mean peddle 'em?"

"Sure, you and I can go out in the country and sell hammers to the farmers every evening after the store closes. Why, Grady, it'll be fun and—"

Grady shook his head dubiously. "Whoever heard of peddling hammers door-to-door? Besides your Uncle Dave may not approve."

"We won't tell him," Shirley said.

That evening Grady and Shirley gave the horoscope-inspired idea a try.

"Well, we didn't sell a single hammer," Grady said as they drove home. "But it's been fun." He paused and sniffed the fresh odor of a newly mowed meadow.

"You discovered that Tony Bottaro needed a new cream separator, and that Omar Jones was in the market for a tractor," Shirley said.

But at the end of the week, they had to admit their hammer-selling project had been a failure. Out of the dozens of calls they had made, they had succeeded in selling only six hammers.

"Looks like we're licked," Grady said, as he stopped his roadster in front of Shirley's home. "Guess I'll have to start looking for a new job in a few days."

The next morning he was counting the hammers in the show case, when he heard old Dave Crossett's shrill voice, calling him.

"Yessir, Mr. Crossett," Grady said, trying to swallow the lump in his throat. He hurried to the proprietor's office at the front end of the store.

"Come in, Grady." The old man peered at him sharply over his dark plastic rimmed glasses. "How many of the Red Head hammers do we have left?"

"Approximately five dozen, sir."

Old Dave Crossett's high pitched voice interrupted him. "You don't need to explain, Grady. Forget everything I said about them Red Head hammers. That getting out and calling on the farmers was a real smart idea. It's already brought us in over a thousand dollars in increased business, and I've decided to raise your salary fifty dollars a month and give you a five per cent commission—that is, if you'll stay with me."

Have You Checked Your Cotton Lately

Jackson County Agents

You would do well to check every field thoroughly. You could be pleasantly surprised. But the chances are that it will be an unpleasant surprise that you will get. There has been a tremendous build-up in boll weevil population during the last ten days or two weeks. Percentage wise, the numbers of freshly punctured squares has jumped from less than six percent to more than fifty percent in most fields we have checked. We have noticed that a few farmers have been poisoning. We are afraid there are not near enough of them doing so.

When we attempt to figure out why a lot more farmers of this county have not commenced to poison their cotton fields before now, three explanations occur to us. Not enough farmers have been checking their cotton fields thoroughly and often enough during the last two weeks. Too many of us concluded that it is now nearly the middle of August and hope that we can make a good cotton crop without poisoning this year. Our cotton is very rank and brittle and we are afraid we will tear it up badly in getting over it with any kind of poisoning apparatus except an airplane.

We would like to comment briefly on each of these possible explanations. In the first place, no farmer ever made more money easily nor made more money by not knowing exactly the situation he had to face at all times in his cotton fields, whether he did anything about it or not. If he happens to be among the lucky ones, that is having few boll weevils at this time, he ought to rest a lot better by knowing this fact. In the second place, it is true that it is nearly the middle of August and a good bit of cotton is already made, particularly in our older cotton. But let us remember that there can be as much or more cotton made within the next 20 to 30 days as is already made if we will only protect it where protection is needed. In the third place, it is true that our cotton was never ranker, nor more brittle at this time of year than it is now. A good bit of it would be damaged by going through it with any sort of poisoner except plane. Still we are of the opinion that not 10% as much cotton would be destroyed by going through it three times within the next fifteen days with any kind of poisoning equipment we have as the boll weevil will destroy during this time if let alone. We must remember that much of our cotton is late this year and if we are to make a good yield, we are going to have to make a good part of it in the August crop. In most fields we have checked this week, it is clear to us that if let alone, the boll weevil will reap most of our young squares and blooms from now on and a good portion of the bolls that are not now better than one-fourth mature.

For the above reasons we urge that every cotton farmer check his cotton fields at once and if he has more than 20% of punctured squares at this time in any of his fields that are still green and growing, poison it three times at 4 or 5 day intervals in one way or another. We are of the opinion that if any group of farmers can get together with sufficient acreage to get a plane it will be money to them to do so. If this cannot be done, then it will be money to us to go through our cotton with a tractor or mule duster. We are of the opinion that it can easily mean a half bale more of cotton per acre to many of us.

"CAN YOU TOP THIS?"

Since longer ago than anyone remembers, men have noticed the unusual. Some out-of-the-ordinary thing or condition, has happened, and some one gave it attention. Even in the Bible things like that were recorded. One fellow was hairy all over. One had six fingers, and toes on each hand and foot. Still another went in for mass production, and fathered 88 children!

The thing that inspired this piece is a situation that exists on one of the school bus routes in the Bryant community. James Schrudder is the driver, and at one stop he picks up three sets of twins. They are Pat and Mike Loyd, age 12; Linda and Brenda Henderson, age 12; Johnnie and Tommie Farris, age 11. We wonder if this could be duplicated in six states.

BUTTON CLOVER RESEEDING THE FOURTH YEAR
 By Mansel Wolf

H. L. Butler of Garth has a field of button clover that is up to a stand now, which is the fourth year since it produced seed.

The button clover was originally given to Mr. Butler for a trial planting to determine its worth as a soil conserving and grazing crop. It has proved to be a good grazing crop and a good crop to turn for green manure. One of its outstanding qualities is its ability to reseed three or more years after it has produced a seed crop. It is a big advantage to a farmer not to have to buy seed and plant a legume crop each year.

Another advantage of button clover is that it does not bloat cattle as bad as crimson or white clover. It also will graze at least three weeks later in the spring than crimson clover.

The statements above are all from farmers who have used button clover.

BURLINGTON WAGE INCREASE ANNOUNCED

Burlington Industries revealed that its announced general wage increase of five cents an hour will bring the textile concern's average hourly earnings to $1.44, 44 cents higher than the proposed new Federal Government wage minimum.

The wage increase, to take effect August 22, will apply generally to production employees in Burlington's Southern operations.

Prior to the increase, Burlington's average hourly earnings were $1.39 an hour. Approximately 35,000 employees in 90 plants are covered by the increase.

This is Burlington's fourth general wage increase since 1948.

TVA RETIRES BONDS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

TVA today paid $14,000,000 to the U.S. Treasury to retire, fourteen years ahead of schedule, all of its outstanding bonded indebtedness. The total bond issue, made in 1938-39, amounted to $65,072,500.

Redemption of the last of the bonds comes well ahead of maturity dates. Of the $14 million, $10 million was due in 1963, and $4 million in 1969.

In addition to redeeming the principal of $65,072,500, TVA has paid interest on the bonds totaling $10,679,704.

Money to redeem the bonds and pay interest on them has come from revenues from the sale of TVA power.

Authorization to sell bonds was given to TVA in the original TVA Act. The greater part of this issue, however, was made available by Act of Congress in July 1939 in legislation which specifically authorized TVA to purchase certain electric utility properties of the Commonwealth and Southern Corp., including the Tennessee Electric Power Company, the Alabama Power Company, and the Mississippi Power Company. In authorizing these purchases, Congress gave its approval to creation of the TVA region-wide power system.

Of the total issue, bonds aggregating $36,775,000 were sold to the U.S. Treasury, and bonds in the amount of $8,300,000 to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Last of the RFC bonds was paid off by TVA in 1947, though they were not due until 1961.

TVA used $56,500,000 of the issue to purchase the private power properties; $8,300,000 to construct new facilities; and $272,500 to lend to power distributors to build or buy distribution facilities.

results in headache, indigestion, backache, nervous disorders and other conditions.

In turn poor sight may be associated with disease, such as syphilis, arteriosclerosis, or diabetes. The normal process of growing old may affect the eye, since all of the tissues concerned with the nutrition of the eye, especially the blood vessels, change with increasing age, leaving the eye less competent as a functional organ.

Persons with bad eyesight frequently have red and swollen eyelids, with constant watering, and blood shot areas in the normally white areas. Sometimes the eyelids will be crusted together after sleep. A tired eye is unable to work satisfactorily. It becomes easily irritated and is more likely to be invaded by foreign bodies, such as cinders and dust, because the tissues do not react normally to get rid of such foreign material.

The normal eye should see clearly and effortlessly at twenty feet and adjust itself readily to greater or lesser distances. But civilization, with its reading and industrial activity, is responsible for most of our eye work being carried on within twenty feet.

Work with good illumination, so that the eye is not strained. Get sufficient sleep to rest the eye muscles. Eat nourishing food.

YOUR EYES

To be without sight is one of the greatest of personal tragedies, yet many persons constantly mistreat their eyes.

The eye is intended to receive and focus light rays and carry visual impressions to the brain. The eye thus brings knowledge of our environment to the brain and serves as a principal agent in keeping each of us in touch with the world outside our bodies.

Proper care of the eye is essential to general good health; and, conversely, good general health is important to the health of the eye. When some part of the eye is damaged, undue strain

NATIONAL GUARD NEEDS MORE MEN

Company B, 151st Engineer Battalion, Scottsboro National Guard unit, needs men, and invites young men 17 to 18½ and veterans holding ratings to find out what good openings are available in the unit. Experienced servicemen can get good assignments in many jobs, due to the enlistment of a number of noncoms in the regular army. More than thirty non-commissioned officer positions are now open, according to Captain Willis Henshaw, company commander, and men who have had training and experience in the military occupational specialty called for by these positions can enroll in the Guard in the grade held while on active duty. Non-commissioned officers up through the grade of Sergeant First Class can apply for these jobs, and will be accepted if their specialist training qualifies them for the job.

Most of the SFC ratings call for a combat construction specialist rating and the jobs now open are for squad leaders. In addition to combat construction specialists needed in the grade of sergeant, there are two vacancies in that rank open for first cooks. Corporals can just about select the job they want, as there are vacancies in that rank for most all specialties in the unit.

There are also a number of vacancies for non-veterans 17 to 18½ years old, and they will be given the choice of the assignments in the unit. Under the new Reserve Bill, a man of this age can join the Guard, volunteer for three to six months active duty whenever he wants to, and discharge his military obligation within eight years, so long as he remains active in the Guard reserve. Under the old bill, they were eligible for the draft until they reached the age of 28 years. Interested men should contact the local Armory for additional information.

SOCIAL SECURITY IS 20 YEARS OLD

Washington, Aug. 13—Twenty years ago tomorrow President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Social Security Act. Under it more than 44 billion dollars has been paid out and the program is still expanding.

A check of federal agencies handling the various programs brought the 44-billion-dollar figure. It does not include additional billions spent by the states and communities as their shares of some of the federal-state programs established or expanded under the law.

The biggest program authorized by the 1935 law and subsequent amendments is what is known as the Old Age and Survivors Insurance system. This is what the average person thinks about when Social Security is mentioned.

It is entirely a federal program and extends to 9 out of 10 persons who work for pay. It is financed by a special tax.

The original bill signed into law Aug. 14, 1935, also authorized federal-state programs for:

1. Unemployment compensation for workers temporarily out of jobs. The states levy a special payroll tax to support the program.
2. Assistance to the needy aged, the blind and dependent children.
3. Maternal and child health, child welfare and crippled children's services.

Here is a rundown on federal funds paid out in major programs and something on the scope involved:

Old Age and Survivors Insurance—17 billion paid out by June 30 to 11 million persons. Monthly checks to some 7½ million persons are now totaling about 385 million dollars. An estimated 69 million workers will be in covered jobs this year.

Public Assistance Programs—Grants totaling 12½ billions have been made to the states to aid millions of needy aged and blind persons and dependent children covered by the original act and hundreds of thousands of needy disabled adults covered by a program authorized in 1950. The grants to the states for this year ending June 30, are estimated to total about 1½ billion.

Child Welfare, Maternal and Child Health and Crippled Children's Programs administered by the Children's Bureau—$337,696,798 in grants made to the states to aid mothers and children.
Vocational Rehabilitation—Under the Social Security Act grants to the states totaled $16,971,600 between 1935 and 1944. Since 1944 the program has been handled under other legislation.

Public Health Service—Under the Social Security Act grants to the states for public health activities totaled $23,833,000 between 1936 and 1945. Since 1945 the grant program has been handled under the Public Health Service Act.

Under the federal-state unemployment compensation program the states had paid out more than 14 billion dollars in 778,885,000 weekly checks up to June 30. Figures were not available as to the number of individuals paid.
The initial tax was 1 per cent on a maximum pay of $3,000 a year, or $30. This has been increased to where the tax now is 2 per cent on a maximum wage of $4,200 or $84.

M. H. Lynch To Head Medical Staff

WELL KNOWN SCOTTSBORO DOCTOR CHOSEN FOR IMPORTANT POSITION

The medical staff of the Jackson County Hospital will have M. H. Lynch, well known Scottsboro doctor, as its head.

Hewrick, M.D.; John E. Johnson, Dentist; William A. Maddox, Surgeon.

Ruth Harris Peet, M.D.; Ralph M. Sheppard, Dentist; Frederick W. Smith, Surgeon; Ross C. Speir, Jr., Surgeon; and Vistor Taylor, M.D.

There will be an M.D. on active call at the hospital at all times to handle any emergency. Active call duty is covered by local doctors that are near enough to the hospital for constant contact. Features of the new hospital include a doctor's lounge in order that physicians will have ample accommodations for duty on a rotating basis.

Picture shows Miss Mary Alice Thomas, key member of the office staff of the new Jackson County Hospital. Miss Thomas is pictured at one of the modern new desks of the business office of the hospital. Miss Thomas has been with the Hospital Administrator since his arrival in Scottsboro and has done much of the groundwork in preparation for the opening.

Lobby of Hospital Is An Array of Beauty

When you enter the lobby of the Jackson County Hospital, you will immediately take notice of the beautiful Walnut paneling on the walls. It adds a luxury to the interior that cannot be surpassed. Actually, the Walnut walls you see in the lobby are less than one quarter of an inch thick. Far less in fact, we just use this figure to give you an indication. The wall material consists of a razor thin strip of Walnut glued to a canvas backing. Of course, the cost of this material is less than that of genuine Walnut paneling and the appearance is the same. The durability is great.

luxury scheme of the room and the drapes add a touch that is supreme.

The chairs are upholstered Royal Chrome and carry the new satin chrome finish. Tables are formica for durability and ease of cleaning.

Other visitor benefits include a cold drinking water unit and private telephone booth. The reception desk and admission desk join the lobby through a connecting counter.

The lobby of the Jackson County Hospital is designed for the convenience of the citizens of Jackson County when they are visitors to the new hospital facility.

Book Dedicated To Mrs. Lora Bynum

The book that is being published by the Jackson County Hospital Board, showing the features of the new facility and telling the story of its beginning and service, will be dedicated in memory of Mrs. Lora V. Bynum.

Born in Bedford County, Tennessee, October 1, 1882, Mrs. Bynum taught school in Jackson County for many years.

She was an outstanding religious and civic leader, her first interest always being that of her community and fellow citizens. As a teacher in our local schools, Mrs. Bynum's ever growing interest in educational activities won scores of friends and great admiration from both students and school officials.

Her great sympathy for the needy, ill, and her loyal and humble devotion to her family and country, inspired her husband and children to donate this hospital site in her memory. A good portion of the county construction cost was defrayed by this gift, enabling the Hospital Board to build a more modern hospital with facilities seldom found in similar size communities.

Hospital Located On Beautiful Site Given By Bynums

The Jackson County Hospital is located on a beautiful seven-acre site southwest of town on the Woods Cove Road. All patients' rooms are so planned that from any direction one can see a beautiful mountain view. This land was donated by H. O. Bynum and children and has been valued by hospital authorities at $10,000.

The Hospital Board is not only grateful to these citizens for the donation of the land, but also for their great interest and untiring efforts in helping carry out the plans of this Board in getting this splendid new hospital. Mr. Bynum has served as a Board member and, through his outstanding loyalty and inspiring energy, this great accomplishment was brought to realization.

The seven-acre site provides adequate space for any future expansion program if and when needed. The geographical location makes this facility easily available to all the people of our county.

Building of The Jackson County Hospital Was A Huge Task

The Jackson County Hospital is one of the most complex structures ever to be designed by architects. In order that the cost of this building may be justified in the minds of our citizens, we are listing below some facts about the construction of this hospital:

17,000 sq. ft. precast concrete roof decking; 91,000 face brick; 30,000 common brick; 37,000 concrete blocks; 7,600 pcs. structural glazed tile; 4,300 sq. yds. asphalt paving; 176 steel windows; 24,000 lbs. reinforcing steel; 242,000 lbs. structural steel; 11,000 sq. ft. ceramic tile and terrazo; 13,000 sq. ft. asphalt tile; 22,000 sq. ft. steel mesh; 17,000 sq. ft. metal forms; 2,000 sq. ft. glass; 800 sq. ft. lead lining for x-ray room; 8,000 sq. ft. acoustic tile; 6,000 sq. yds. lath and plastering; 70,000 linear ft. electric wire; 31,000 linear ft. electric conduit; 12,000 linear ft. copper pipe; 7,000 linear

ft. steel pipe; 30,000 lbs. soil pipe and fittings; 65 tons air conditioning capacity; duplicate steam boilers; automatic generator for electrical failure.

Construction cost and provisions of funds:

Federal share of cost	$326,530.90
State share of cost	60,000.00
County share of cost	168,469.10
Total cost	$555,000.00

Hospital Rooms Are Strictly Modernistic

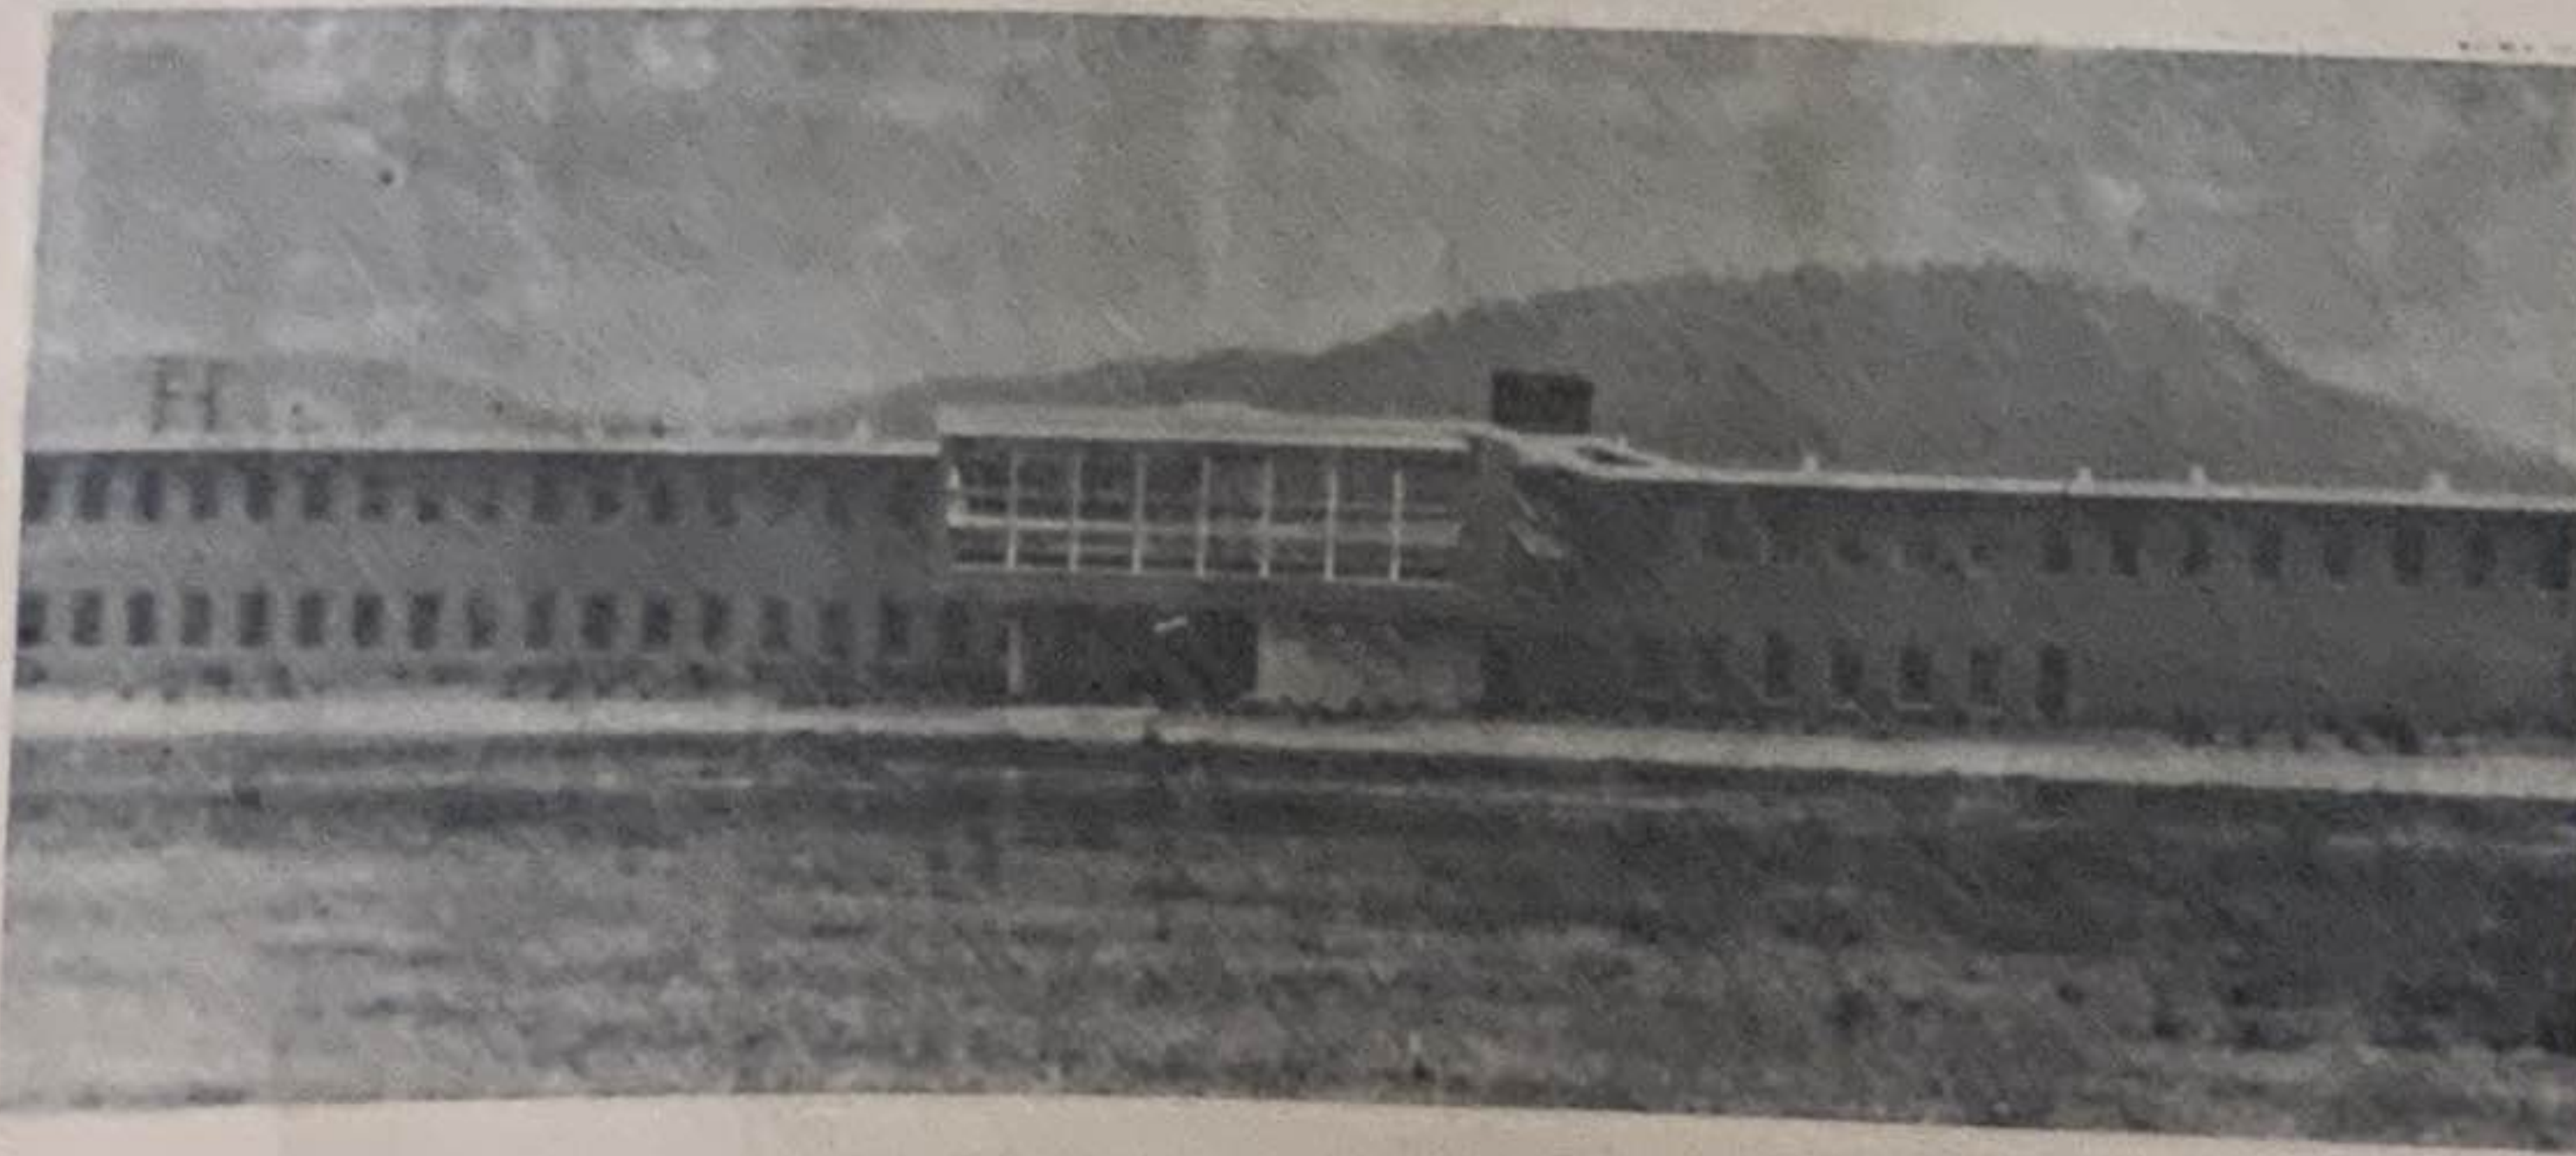

Private Rooms Are Both Modern and Comfortable For The Patient

When you enter one of the private rooms at the Jackson County Hospital, you are very much impressed by the beauty of the hospital rooms at the Waldorf. The night lamps are color coordinated with the furniture. The hospital beds are modern and comfortable. The dresser and the table as well as over the bed are color blended. The carpet and tile on the floor are in harmony. And the ceiling is with the entire hospital. Ceilings in the department are sandpaper acoustical.

Not just the deluxe room, but each and every room of the entire hospital has Simmons colored hospital furniture. By all other comparisons, every room is deluxe. There are automatic call buttons to call the nurses. These lights cannot be turned off until the nurse answers the call from the room. There are bedside plugs for oxygen. And, modern new radios and TV are planned as a special service. There is no stone unturned in the equipping of the new Jackson County Hospital and you are invited to inspect this facility on the opening day.

SHORT STORY

Dream Boat

By Paul MacMillan

"BUT you've got to, Johnny!" I pleaded. "Daddy said absolutely no, unless you give up this puttering around with speedboats and get a decent job."

"I've tried," Johnny sounded fierce. "I've tried to give up Dream Boat and settle down to a humdrum job with a future. You know that. I just can't stick it. But don't you worry, little mix, Dream Boat'll come in and we'll have it rosy!"

Johnny sounded real confident, but then he had sounded like this every other time he had raced. And he hadn't won one yet. Oh, sure, he had placed in the last two, but Daddy said that was not enough to get married on.

Johnny had told Daddy about the changes he was going to make in the engine so that Dream Boat would win. It didn't sway Daddy. "Absolutely not, youngsters. I'll give you just three months more. If you don't have a real job with steady pay by then, Johnny, you'll have to break it up."

3-Minute Fiction

Johnny was desperate, too. "I can't do it, Edie."

The three months were almost up. "Johnny!" I whispered desperately in his ear. "Johnny, get a job. You know that I can't live without you!"

"I can't do it, Edie," Johnny was desperate, too. "You know the big race is a week from Sunday, and Dryerson is racing two of his boats. I can beat both of them. I know I can! And the purse is a thousand bucks!"

"I know you can win, Johnny. But Daddy means a JOB, with STEADY wages."

Johnny pulled me close and kissed me. He pushed back the lock of hair from my eyes, and traced a tear-drop. "See me a week from Sunday, honey." He pressed two tickets into my hand, and walked away to the bus stop.

Daddy was kind but firm when I told him. "Give him up now, Edie. I cannot let you marry a man who won't settle down so he can take proper care of you."

The two years we had been engaged, I had shared Johnny with Dream Boat. Now Dream Boat would have all of him. I cried myself to sleep.

Daddy went to the big race with me. If Johnny didn't win, maybe Daddy and I could talk him into quitting the boats and getting a good job. I was sure Daddy would still let us get married if Johnny went to work.

I was excited and nervous as the boats roared by on the warm-up lap. When they passed the flag-boat and started the wild race, I forgot all about hoping that Johnny would lose; I was up on my feet rooting for him for all I was worth.

Three boats came churning into the last turn. As they swept up to the finish, I saw that Johnny and the two Dryerson boats were fighting it out.

A roar went up from the crowd. Johnny had won the race! And Dream Boat had won Johnny.

I sat down, numb. Working the little diamond off my finger, I said to Daddy, "Let's go see him."

Johnny saw us coming. "Edie," he yelled. "Edie, honey, we did it!" Then he saw Daddy. "Hi, Dad," he said, smiling.

Daddy's face tightened. "Now see here, son. Because you won a thousand dollars in a race doesn't mean that you can support Edie."

Johnny just grinned, and gathered me into a big hug. "The thousand bucks will get us started, Dad. When I beat Jim Dryerson's big new boats he couldn't understand it, so I told him what I had done to the old engine. He offered me a job in his marine depot. A job that will support Edie and me!"

I put the ring back on my finger. Johnny kissed me right in front of Daddy and said softly, "I told you our Dream Boat would come in."

OLD AGE CHECKS CUT

Many old age checks will be cut in August because funds are not sufficient to continue present rates of payment to the increasing numbers eligible. Commissioner J. S. Snoddy said today. "This is true," he said, "even though more funds are available for the aged."

Pointing out that the revenue measures enacted by the Special Session of the Legislature are expected to yield about $7,900,000 annually, the Commissioner showed that this is far short of the $20 million increase recommended by the Department to provide $50 average payments to the 110,000 old persons expected to be eligible.

"We hope to receive about $1,900,000 of the new revenues during the current fiscal year," Snoddy added, "but this sum is insufficient, with other available funds, to continue present payment rates."

The Commissioner explained that the higher standards for determining need, plus repeal of the responsibility law and the change in the property restriction, are among factors contributing to the increased caseload.

"In May, when the repeal of the relative responsibility law took effect, we announced more liberal requirements for getting old age checks," Snoddy explained. Among these more liberal requirements, he listed the following:

1. The amount considered for the essentials in determining need has been increased from $32 a person each to $55 each for a man and his wife. Rent as-paid continues to be allowed also up to $30 monthly, but maximum grants remain at $55.

2. Persons can own a home-stead with a $5,000 net value (assessment less encumbrances) and have $1,000 reserve (including livestock, cash, bonds, cars, etc.) and qualify. Before May, persons owning any real property with $800 or more net value were denied aid.

3. Home produce raised and consumed by the family is no longer deducted from food allowances.

The Commissioner said these new regulations already have resulted in an increase in the number receiving old age checks from 63,984 in April to 76,322 in July. And at the end of July there were 13,401 applications for old age in process of investigation.

The reduction in payments will be on the same basis for all old age recipients. Snoddy added, "Instead of the 100 percent of budgeted need up to the $55 maximum, old age clients will get 80 percent of what they need according to the new standards, with the maximum remaining at $55."

"Effective in August, all cases not rebudgeted since May have been put on the new standards," the Commissioner added, "so that all persons will get the same proportion of what they need." He expressed regret that it is necessary to reduce the percent of need met for the aged.

There have been no additional funds for the welfare program, other than the aged. The Department, therefore, has not liberalized policies for the other public assistance groups, Snoddy said. He pointed out that the Legislature has not yet appropriated any money from the general fund for the welfare program for the next two years.

"We hope very much that the Legislature can find sufficient funds to carry out Governor Folsom's program for the people served by the Welfare Department," Dr. Snoddy concluded.

FARM BUREAU HEAD CRITICISM TARGET

Russellville, Aug. 17—Criticism of the Alabama Farm Bureau president broke out into the open here today at the annual meeting of the Franklin County Farm Bureau.

The newly-elected president of the Franklin County Farm Bureau, David Marrow, said in the opening address to the group that he felt Walker Randolph, the state president, no longer had the interest of the farmers at heart in his appearances before various committees.

He said Randolph had on certain occasions presented the farmers stand on issues which in reality were Randolph's own opinions and not the farmers'.

Marrow said he felt the best interests of the farm bureau would be served if Randolph resigned. Jack Snead of Newburg, another speaker, said Randolph had outlived his usefulness in serving the small farmer.

Farm Surpluses Keep On Growing

New York, Aug. 13.—The struggle of the Department of Agriculture to cut burdensome surpluses by restricting acreage appears to have failed, so far as their year's crops are concerned. The Aug. 1 estimates issued this week by the Crop Reporting Board indicate an over-all production approximating the record yield of 1948. Given normal weather until the harvest is over, it seems quite likely that final yields may even be a bit bigger.

With the government committed to support prices of the major crops, the excess will be absorbed at the expense of the nation's taxpayers. At the close of the last session of Congress the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corp., the government's price-support agency, was raised to 120 billion dollars from 10 billion.

In an effort to ease the cotton surplus problem the government sharply restricted the acreage sown. This year only 17,096,000 acres were planted, the smallest since official records have been gathered. This compared with 19,791,000 acres in 1954 and 25,224,000 in 1953.

It has been thought that this year's crop would be below this year's cotton requirements, resulting in a reduction in the carryover. However, this week's official forecast placed the crop at 12,728,000 bales—which may mean a further increase in stocks at the end of the crop year July 31, 1956.

Although the forecast of the Crop Reporting Board generally is considered by the trade as accurate based on Aug. 1 conditions, there is a chance that the yield may vary widely from the final figure. The estimate was some one million bales higher than the average of private guesses.

Although earlier forecasts on this year's wheat crop had indicated a yield that might result in some easing of the surplus, the latest estimate has dashed that hope. A crop of 910,838,000 bushels, as forecast this week would be greater than the expected "disappearance" of 890 million bushels in the present wheat crop year ending on June 30, 1956.

Record Wheat Surplus

The carryover of wheat on July 1 has been placed by the Department of Agriculture at 1,026,011,000 bushels. When the expected yield is added to that figure, the supply for this season amounts to a record total of 1,950,969,000 bushels. As in cotton, the bulk of the carryover is held by the government.

What makes the wheat outlook gloomy is the increase in production in virtually every nation. Argentina is producing a larger than normal crop. The Canadian yield this year may be higher than last season. Almost all the exporting nations, particularly Canada, have large carryovers.

Despite the huge outlays by the government, the prices of farm products continue to slip. They now are down some 25 per cent from the peak of a few years ago, while other commodities still are holding at peak levels.

R. T. Morris Receives Salesmanship Award

(From Emporia, Va. Newspaper)

R. T. Morris of Morris Refrigeration Service in Emporia, today, July 15, received a "Weather-maker Hall of Fame" award and a prize of Merchandise points as the outstanding Carrier packaged air conditioned salesman in the company's Richmond Branch.

The presentation was made at a luncheon in the Holloway House in Richmond by Guy H. Cheek, Systems Engineer, Charlotte District.

Mr. Morris won his prize for selling better than 200 per cent of his quota of Carrier-Contained Weathermaker air conditioners—the type used widely in stores, suites of offices and other commercial areas—during a 7-week sales contest held by the leading air conditioning manufacturer.

Mr. Morris' formula was a salesman's classic:

"I had the best-known brand and the highest quality unit to sell. I picked a list of prospects who seemed to need air conditioning the most—a bigger list than it seemed possible to handle. Then I got on the street and called on them."

Given normal weather until the harvest is over, it seems quite likely that final yields may even be a bit bigger.

With the government committed to support prices of the major crops, the excess will be absorbed at the expense of the nation's taxpayers. At the close of the last session of Congress the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corp., the government's price-support agency, was raised to 120 billion dollars from 10 billion.

In an effort to ease the cotton surplus problem the government sharply restricted the acreage sown. This year only 17,096,000 acres were planted, the smallest since official records have been gathered. This compared with 19,791,000 acres in 1954 and 25,224,000 in 1953.

It has been thought that this year's crop would be below this year's cotton requirements, resulting in a reduction in the carryover. However, this week's official forecast placed the crop at 12,728,000 bales—which may mean a further increase in stocks at the end of the crop year July 31, 1956.

Although the forecast of the Crop Reporting Board generally is considered by the trade as accurately based on Aug. 1 conditions, there is a chance that the yield may vary widely from the final figure. The estimate was some one million bales higher than the average of private guesses.

Although earlier forecasts on this year's wheat crop had indicated a yield that might result in some easing of the surplus, the latest estimate has dashed that hope. A crop of 910,838,000 bushels, as forecast this week would be greater than the expected "disappearance" of 880 million bushels in the present wheat crop year ending on June 30, 1956.

Record Wheat Surplus

The carryover of wheat on July 1 has been placed by the Department of Agriculture at 1,026,011,000 bushels. When the expected yield is added to that figure, the supply for this season amounts to a record total of 1,950,969,000 bushels. As in cotton, the bulk of the carryover is held by the government.

What makes the wheat outlook gloomy is the increase in production in virtually every nation. Argentina is producing a larger than normal crop. The Canadian yield this year may be higher than last season. Almost all the exporting nations, particularly Canada, have large carryovers.

Despite the huge outlays by the government, the prices of farm products continue to slip. They now are down some 25 per cent from the peak of a few years ago, while other commodities still are holding at peak levels.

R. T. Morris Receives Salesmanship Award

(From Emporia, Va. Newspaper)

R. T. Morris of Morris Refrigeration Service in Emporia, today, July 15, received a "Weather-maker Hall of Fame" award and a prize of Merchandise points as the outstanding Carrier packaged air conditioned salesman in the company's Richmond Branch.

The presentation was made at a luncheon in the Holloway House in Richmond by Guy H. Cheek, Systems Engineer, Charlotte District.

Mr. Morris won his prize for selling better than 200 per cent of his quota of Carrier-Contained Weathermaker air conditioners—the type used widely in stores, suites of offices and other commercial areas—during a 7-week sales contest held by the leading air conditioning manufacturer.

Mr. Morris' formula was a salesman's classic:

"I had the best-known brand and the highest quality unit to sell. I picked a list of prospects who seemed to need air conditioning the most—a bigger list than it seemed possible to handle. Then I got on the street and called on them."

Congressman Bob Jones Speaks At Farm Bureau Meet

Congressman Bob Jones told members of the Jackson County Farm Bureau that farm people are having greater problems today than they have faced in 22 years and urged farm people to join collectively and voice their protest in Washington. He deplored the "the farmer" standard of living enjoyed by workers in occupations.

Mary Frances Proctor Is "Maid of Cotton"

Picture shows Congressman Bob Jones congratulating Mary Frances Proctor as the Jackson County "Maid of Cotton." Congressman Jones was key speaker at the annual meeting of the Jackson County Farm Bureau. Mary Frances will represent Jackson County at the state finals in Birmingham. (Staff photo)

Mary Frances Proctor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dozier Proctor of Scottsboro, has won the title of "Jackson County Maid of Cotton."

The announcement of the judges was made Tuesday at noon at the annual meeting of the Jackson County Farm Bureau at Legion Field.

Mary Frances graduated from Jackson County High School and was a voice major at Gulf Park in Gulfport, Miss. She will attend Birmingham-Southern (this year).

Alternate Maid of Cotton is Joyce Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hodges of Scottsboro. Joyce graduated from J. C. H. S. in the same year with Mary Frances. Joyce was head cheerleader, "Miss FIDA" of this county and voted "Friendliest Girl" by her classmates.

Both winners are well qualified to go on to the state finals. These finals will be held in connection with the Alabama Fair in Birmingham. All expenses for the trip will be provided by sponsors of the Maid of Cotton contest in Jackson County.

Bob Haas served as Chairman of the Maid of Cotton Committee and did an excellent job in staging the contest. Mrs. Jewell Hall, Virginia Word and many others played an important role in taking care of necessary details.

Scottsboro and Jackson County will be pulling for our Maid of Cotton and wishes her well in the finals in Birmingham.

Judges for the contest had a difficult time in selecting the winner according to Tommy Hill of the Birmingham News and all contestants were above average. Others in the contest included Betty Keeble, Margaret Ann Brown and Carolyn Harris.

Many folks will want to see

Dr. E. Julian Hodges Chairman Jackson County Hospital Board

By Dale Smith

In writing the news and covering the open house and dedication of the new Jackson County Hospital, it seemed very fitting that we save the best for last. The key hospital story is one that rates a headline of its own.

That story is the human story of the one man that is most responsible for Jackson County's $355,000.00 Hospital. Dr. E. Julian Hodges, present Chairman of the Board.

From the worker who laid the first brick or dug the first foundation, to the painters, decorators or the final touch-up men, everyone knows and loves "Dr. Julian."

From the fighting stages at the birth of the possibility, through the cold days of winter, shouldering the hundreds of disappointments as well as the encouraging facts, Dr. E. Julian Hodges has lived with the Jackson County Hospital until this great monument is now a reality.

It is a privilege indeed to write this keynote story and honor this "Doctor of Doctors."

Dr. E. Julian Hodges was born in Madison County at Gurley. He was reared primarily in Marshall County just across the line from Woodville. "Dr. Julian" was the son of Willie Julian Hodges, a Methodist preacher who died when "Dr. Julian" was only 17 months old.

From the time he began his schooling and on through until he entered practice, "Dr. Julian" had to work and earn his education. "Dr. Julian" graduated from High School at Madison County High and then finished college at Birmingham Southern. After graduating from Birmingham Southern, he taught school for five years and managed to save enough money to begin his medical education.

Along about this time "Dr. Julian" met and married Ruby Hill who went on to teach for four years after their marriage and aid in the Doctors' cause. After saving enough money both attended the University of Alabama where Dr. Julian studied medicine. At that time the University only offered two years in this field and "Dr. Julian" completed his medical training at Emory University in Atlanta.

After graduation from Medical school Dr. Julian worked with the state Health Department in order to get enough money to enter private practice.

In 1935 Dr. Julian's great dream and years of back breaking effort became a reality and he entered private practice in New Hope.

Dr. Julian has been in Scottsboro since 1940. He set up and joined forces with Dr. Carl Collins in 1949 to operate the Scottsboro Clinic where the two still maintain their offices.

Dr. and Mrs. Julian have two fine daughters, Janice who is a senior at the University and Karen who is a junior at Jackson County High School.

During the earlier days in Scottsboro at in the middle of the war, Dr. Julian volunteered his services and was one of the few Doctors who assisted the Draft Board with cost free examination for draftees.

In writing this headline story of the Jackson County Hospital, many people were contacted, and everyone down to the last telephone call was sworn to secrecy.

It was not difficult to gain the facts. Everyone knows "Dr. Julian," everyone loves him and everyone was delighted to add their bit to this tribute to our "Hospital Father."

Long time nurse Opal Peters could tell many a story about the struggle "Dr. Julian" has gone through, many funny, others heartbreaking. It's a rough life, but the life of a doctor who is devoted to the people of his county.

In talking with "Mrs. Julian" there was one main comment that can sum up his activity. "Between going to the hospital two or three times a day for the last year, and checking on the farm every now and then, there's one good thing. They're both on the same road."

Yes, Dr. Julian has done his job well. His devotion to his profession will live forever in the halls of the new Jackson County Hospital. From tense moments in surgery to the first cry of a new born baby, the heart of this man is 100% for his people.

May we take this seemingly inadequate media to dedicate the entire efforts of this publication to Dr. E. Julian Hodges, "Father of the Jackson County Hospital."

E. JULIAN HODGES, M. D.

Just how their peppers turn out in finished form. Last week a story in the newspaper told of the great asset of the pimento receiving station to the agricultural standing of the community.

It is even more gratifying to know that the finished product is back home for Jackson County people to enjoy.

The Little Leaguers wound up their season last week with the Cleveland Indians taking the Little League Pennant after a hot race. Starting into last week, the Cardinals were leading, but the Indians turned the heat on and spurred into the finish to grab the pennant. They clinched the pennant Thursday when the Cardinals lost the first game and the Indians won their game. Jerry Barclay did some fine pitching for the pennant winners and R. King was an outstanding catcher.

Sparking the Tiny Mites this season were: Robert Dawson, Eddie Cunningham, Mark Armstrong, and Ralph Holland.

The Yankees took the Pony League pennant with no trouble, winning 7 games and losing 1. Helping the Yanks were: Trammell, Precise, Davis, and Benefield.

Junior Leaguers brought their season to a close by defeating Geraldine 9 to 1. They had a 20-5 record this year.

HISTORICAL LANDMARK TO GO SOON

Above is pictured an outstanding landmark in Scottsboro's history which will soon be gone from the scene in the rush of passing events and progress. It is the old Cumberland Presbyterian Church building which was sold last week, along with the lot, to Cecil Word at an auction sale by church officials. The C. P. congregation now occupies a fine new church plant on Kyle Street. The lot, old building, and other old furniture totaled a sale of $7,990.00.

The old church building was erected in 1883 and for 72 years its spire has thrust heavenward and withstood the ravages of storms and weather, and also several bolts of lightning have hit it during its long life. Once the building stood on a quiet, shady residential street, but progress has crowded it until a bustling highway sweeps by its doors.

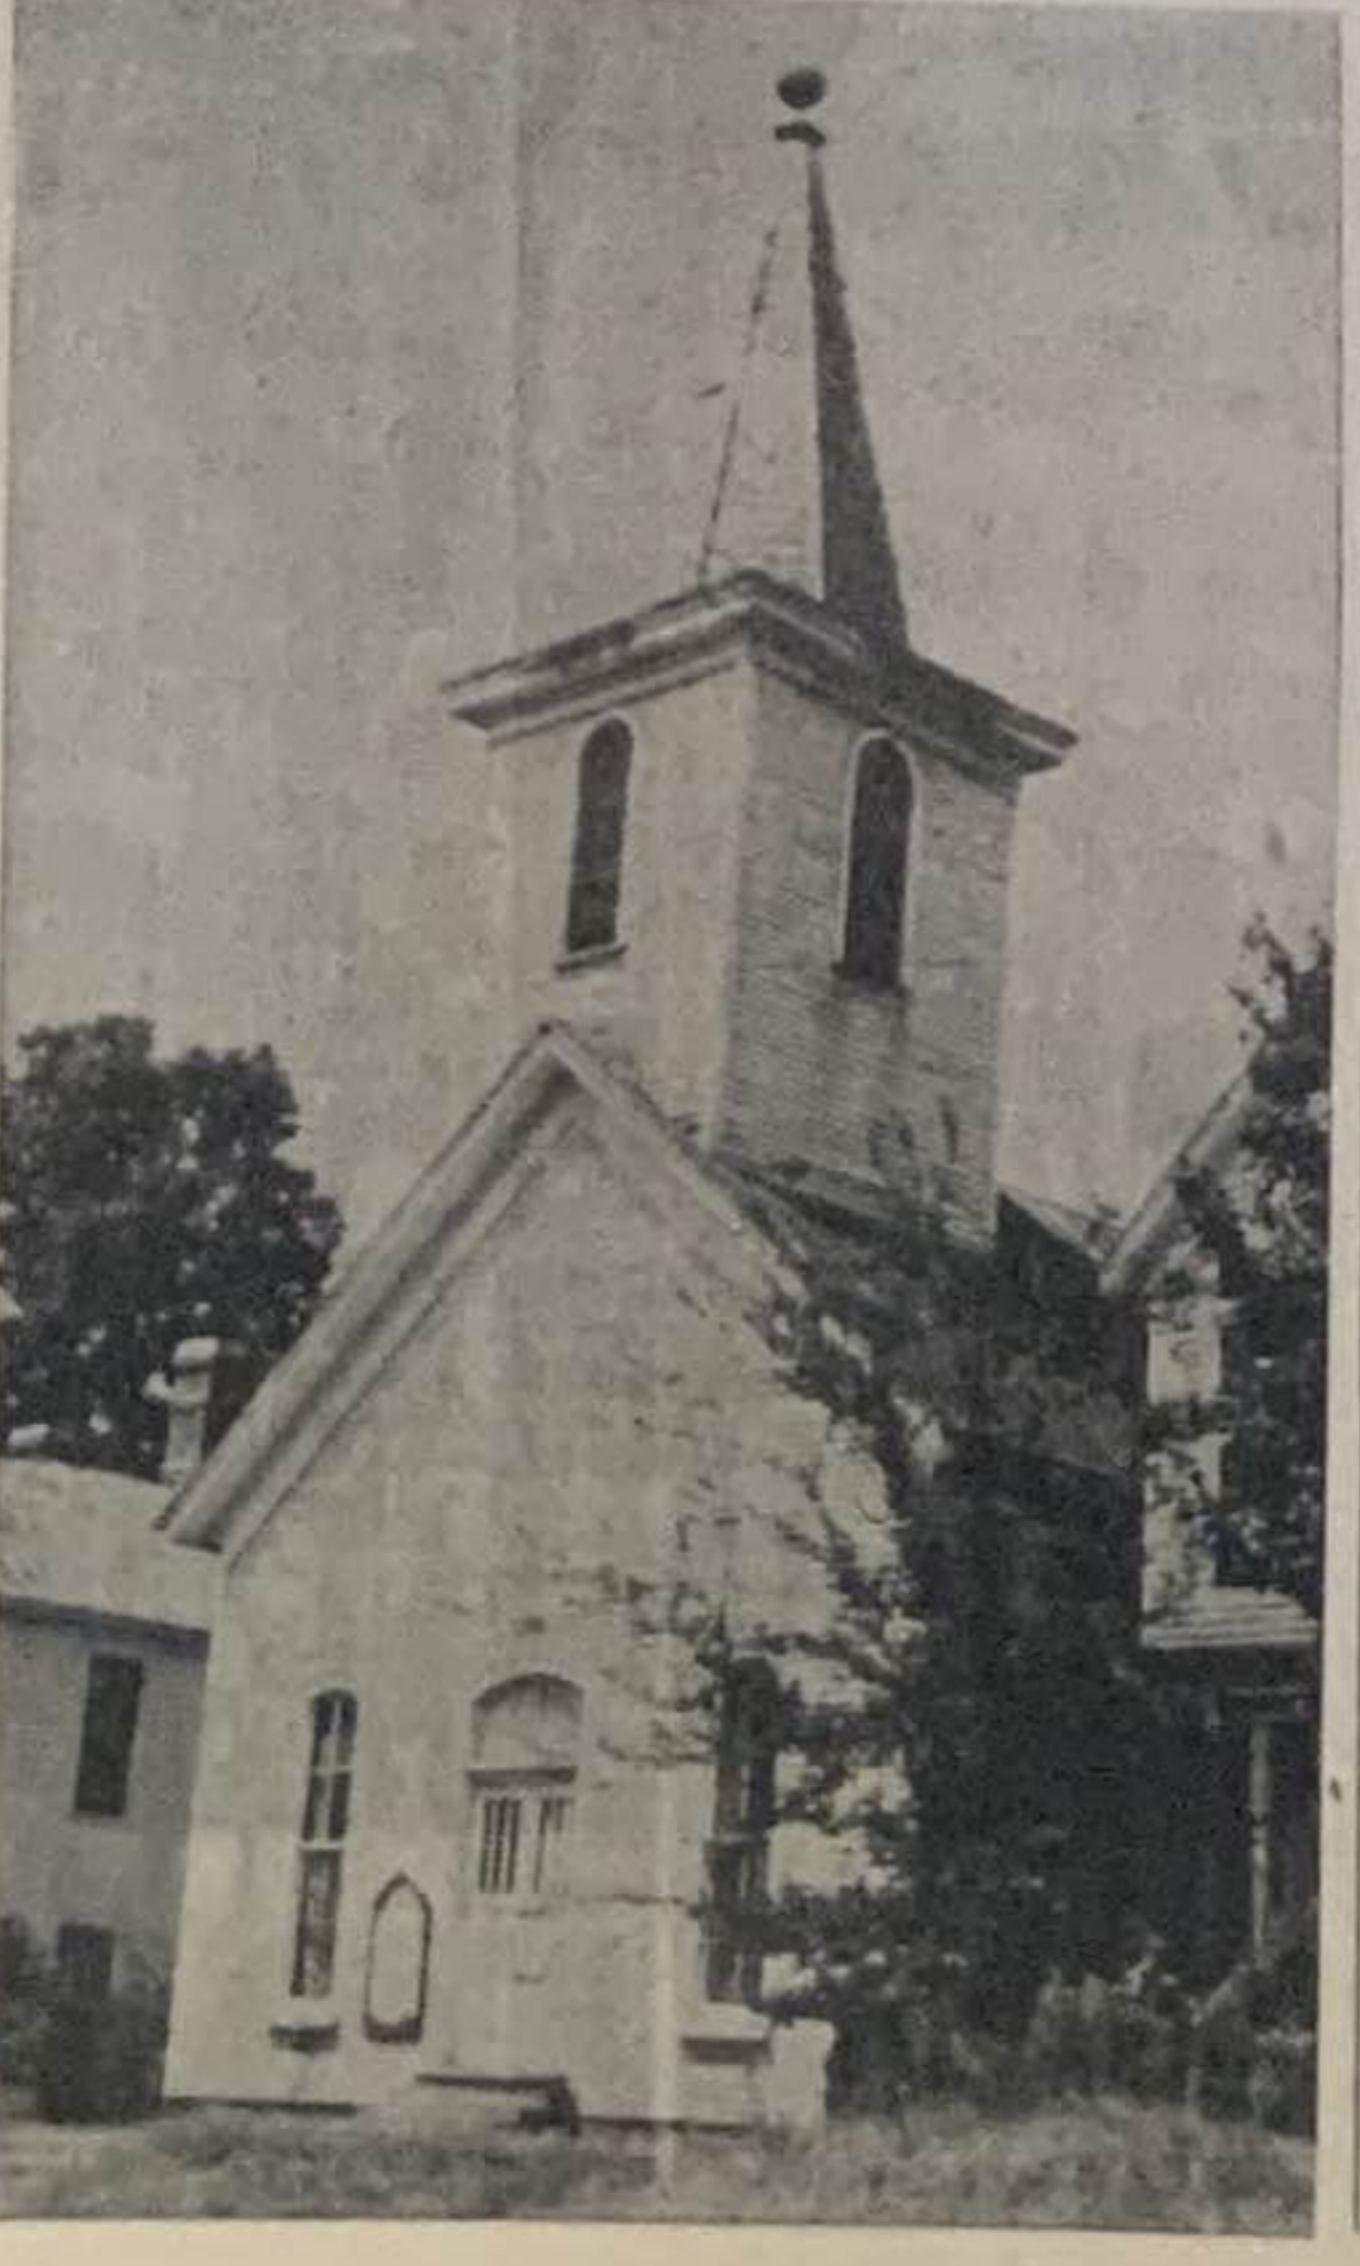

Through the many years this old building has been a part in recording a part of our town's history. The funerals, the weddings, the baptisms, the generations of members growing from Sunday School childhood to adult church responsibility have passed through its double doors.

Atop the tall spire is as faithful weather vane as could have been found. The big arrow faced itself into the breeze and wind day and night with unerring accuracy, and during the last few years it was almost alone in its field of information.

The editor has used this church spire arrow for about 45 years as his weather indicator or predictor and it will be missed when the wrecking crews have laid low this noble old structure which has rendered such a magnificent service to the community in so many ways.

The passing of old ways and things to make way for new ways and progress is a part of life that must be accepted and sentiment must be gently pushed aside. Yet in the life of a town, like the life of a person, when an old building dies it leaves a pang of regret among those who have lived in its shadow for so long a time.

Probably a school building in a community is the only building that holds more sentiment than a church building. Both kinds of buildings are a part of the life of a town and their uses have left indelible marks upon the lives of the generations that pass through them.

Congressman criticized the use of private power interests to destroy the Rural Electrification and TVA programs, and that they "wanted to get greedy hands in the pockets of taxpayers."

Farm Bureau Has Annual Meeting

Matthews, of Route 1, elected president of the Jackson County Farm Bureau at the annual meeting of the organization. Lester Precise elected vice-president and R. King secretary-treasurer.

Executive committee will be composed of these three, and also Porter Perkins, who was elected to the committee.

Estimated 800-900 persons attended the meeting, which was held at the Scottsboro Legion. O. Haas acted as chairman of the meeting, and introduced Congressman Bob Jones who addressed the group. Reports of the meeting of the organization were given by President Matthews and Farm Bureau officials, and County Agent J. E. Carter.

Changes in the organization, necessary to the incorporation of Jackson County Farm Bureau, resulted in the election of officers from 18 community groups.

Previously, there were 18 groups, and they were elected by the communities represented. Papers are being prepared for the incorporation.

Meetings will be held on Tuesday in each month and will be rotated among the communities represented.

to the official dedication of the Jackson County Hospital there will be a special program for the ladies of Jackson County.

Miss Mary C. Brewster, Administrator, announced that Mrs. Mary C. Brewster of The Brewer Insurance Company, has donated 1,000 dollars to be given away to the hospital.

Members have been flown in from out of town and will serve refreshments at the historic hospital. Ladies from the Hospital Auxiliary will be on duty to assist some of the main features of the different departments.

Hospital Auxiliary will also be on duty in the dining room to serve their special program. Funds for hospital

SHORT STORY

Wrong Fellow

By F. L. Rowley

Train had stopped. My Danny pointed to a lady who was dropping her things into the railroad platform.

"She's in trouble," he observed like the way Danny's eyes twinkled.

"3-Minute Fiction"

"What's the matter?" I asked. "We just lost our money's less than ten bucks." And now that we're in the direction of New York, we're looking for someone to help.

"The station had her window, she lifted the window, at the same time a howl like the roar of the rubber works."

"Who's that feller?" asked the old man. "Never seen him before."

"Suddenly an idea hit me. Why couldn't Danny be the 'wrong feller'?" I winked knowingly.

"Tim? Why he's a special agent working for the State Better Business Bureau!"

And it worked. John Townsend scurried off without a backward glance. Maria came into the store carrying doughnuts and coffee.

"Daddy doesn't feel well," she announced. "Furthermore, he has asked me to pay you gentlemen off; we really can't afford two clerks. Would twenty-five dollars be all right?"

We blinked as she pulled out a roll thicker than an axe-handle.

"We'll take it!" I cried. "When does the next train leave for New York?"

Maria's eyes narrowed as she looked at me—hard. "In about thirty minutes," she said evenly. I was glad we were leaving.

"I still can't figure it out," said Danny about an hour later as our train rolled along. "Twenty-five dollars for one morning's work. And Maria claimed they were broke."

"Looks fishy," I agreed. "Perhaps we should contact an agent of the State Better Business Bureau?"

"There's no such thing!" scoffed Danny, frowning at my ignorance.

chancing. What your store needs is new ideas—new blood."

I didn't approve of this arrangement one bit, but nobody asked me. I had to follow Danny, though, because he still had the railroad tickets. The set-up at the store was about as unseamy as I had anticipated. Mr. Jackson, the owner, gave us a cock-and-bull story that shaded his daughter's.

The following day my suspicions were confirmed. An old chap who introduced himself as John Townsend shuffled up behind the store while I was fitting a pane of glass to a window-frame.

"Yep," he said, shaking his head wisely. "I seen it happen a'fore—several times. That young Maria's even fonder than the old man. How much you being paid for this job, bub?"

"Why," I said, blushing. "I'm not quite sure."

"Heel! Heel! That's a good'n. You'll work for two, maybe three weeks, then chuck the job like all 'others. Maria'll soon be down to the railroad station crying her pretty eyes out for more free help. Someday she'll pick on the wrong feller."

About this time Danny came out of the store. After nodding in our direction he strode down the street whistling.

"Who's that feller?" asked the old man. "Never seen him before."

"Suddenly an idea hit me. Why couldn't Danny be the 'wrong feller'?" I winked knowingly.

"Tim? Why he's a special agent working for the State Better Business Bureau!"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Promises of God

Lesson for August 21, 1955

MANY Christians today become confused when they read the prophecies of the Old Testament. They do not seem to be either plain or profitable, because they are written in a strange style and the reader has no way of knowing without help, just where and why and when and to whom these words were first spoken or written. This column is much to straighten out the tangles in even one chapter. The thing to bear in Dr. Foreman's mind is that there is enough in Scripture that is plain to any man, enough to give him all he needs to know about God and his will for us. This column this week will consider one general thought: the promises of God, as they are found in the pages of the prophets particularly.

The Prophet

The promises of God are never made directly, as by a loudspeaker in the sky. The same promise may be made to many persons; but not all at once. The message first takes shape under the skull of one man, a holy, sensitive man, with spiritual insight, generally with great courage and persistence; in short, a prophet. We do not know for certain just what the process is by which a divine truth gets into the human mind of the prophet; but when that divine truth enters the human sphere, it comes as an idea, a thought, in some prophet's mind. Sometimes more than one prophet may say the same thing, as when Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel were all predicting the return of the Jews to Jerusalem. Sometimes the prophet stands entirely alone. But the prophet is like the lookout in the crow's nest of a ship, sighting the dim landfall before any one on deck can see it.

The Promise

Sometimes the signal the prophet's keen spirit caught from on high spelled disaster; sometimes it was like "news behind news," a commentary on the why of events in past or present. But often, indeed more often than anything else, the message of the prophet is a promise. You can sum up all the promises there are into one sentence: God is good; he desires the good of all his children; and he will bring good to pass. One writer in the New Testament suggests that the prophets did not always understand their own messages; they were like radio receivers crossed by static. Be that as it may, we know from reading the Gospels that the people who read the prophets, even the professional interpreters, did not always understand what they read. The promises were set in obscure language, often in poetry. One feature however is clear. The focus and center of the prophet's hope and dream was the Messiah. It is true, their descriptions were so misread that when Jesus Christ came, most of his fellow-countrymen, measuring him by the literal words of these promises, did not recognize him. But there were those who did. The Christian discovers that all the best good that God desires for his children is summed up in Christ and what he does for men.

The Present

What can a Christian today do with the promises passed on by the prophets? Some of them refer no doubt to events long since past, as when Ezekiel and Jeremiah predicted the destruction of Babylon. The Christian can take such promises to support his faith that God does rule in the history of men; that his decrees are certain, his foreknowledge sure. Some of the promises are still unfulfilled, as when a prophet predicts the utter destruction of evil from this earth and the coming of a time of universal peace. A Christian can live by such hope even when (just as in the prophet's own days) the hope seems out of reach entirely. Where the prophet speaks of God's Servant the Coming One, we can use such promises to deepen our understanding of what Christ is to mean to the world. But every once in a while, in reading the prophets, one discovers that spans past, present and future. It was a promise made good long ago; it will come true in centuries to come; it is true in this present hour. Such a promise is to be found, for instance, in Isaiah 55:1-7.

Tips on buying school clothes. This is the season for buying winter school clothes. Here are some suggestions to keep in mind when shopping:

1. Many washable wool, wool blends, and man-made fabrics are on the market by the yard and in ready-made garments. The upkeep on washable garments is much less than on clothes that must be dry cleaned. Before you buy, ask if a garment is washable.
2. Whether a finished dress or coat will wash depends upon such things as seam construction, trimmings, thread, interfacing, and styling.
3. Find out what method of washing to use, whether to wash by hand or machine, with warm or hot water, to extract water or let garments drip dry, to iron or not and with what temperature.
4. When buying any fabric unfamiliar to you, insist on a label that tells what the fabric is made of and how to care for it.
5. Buy shoes to allow for growth but not too large to interfere with foot development. Children from 6 to 10 years old need to increase shoe size about once every 3 or 4 months. A teen-ager may need a larger size every 4 to 6 months. Gaining 10 pounds may call for a change in shoe size.
6. Socks should fit as well as shoes. Do not overstock and let a child wear one size too long. Outgrown socks cause tired feet and poor posture.
7. The new stretch fabrics used in making socks, tee-shirts, and gloves may be the solution to size problems for the fast growing boys and girls.
8. With the new plastics, rainwear need not be very expensive, bulky, or heavy to carry.
9. Some of the all-purpose coats are treated to serve as raincoats, eliminating the need for an extra coat.
10. Buy with an eye for care. Select fabrics with a soil and wrinkle resistant finish. Choose those that require little or no ironing.

Good freezer ideas. Two plastic bags of bread crumbs, one plain and one buttered, will often hasten the preparation of a main dinner dish.

Freeze whipped cream topping. Whip the cream, sweeten it, and flavor. Drop in peaks on baking sheet. Freeze. Remove with a spatula and place in an air-tight container. Top desserts 15 minutes before serving.

Freeze mint aches and marachino cherries in ice cubes for iced drinks and punches. Arrange the leaves and cherries in a ring mold and fill with water or lemonade. Use frozen ring to top punch bowl.

Potato chips, crackers, and pretzels can be frozen for a short period of time. A few of each may be removed at the time.

Mrs. W. O. Carter, Route 2, Section, was chosen club woman of the month for Coffey Home Demonstration Club by Mrs. L. M. Golden, club reporter.

Mrs. Carter was club hostess for the July club meeting and as club house-furnishings leader she gave a discussion on "Safety For Older People."

The Carters have recently completed a new home located in the Coffey community. Mrs. Carter helped with the finishing of the inside of the house and has also refurnished 2 bedroom suites and 2 end tables. In addition to a beautiful new home with modern conveniences, the Carters have bought a 20 foot upright home freezer and a television set.

Since Mr. Carter is a construction worker, most of his work takes him away from home. The care of the home and supervision of their 9-year-old son is left to Mrs. Carter. She is now busy with filling her new freezer from her excellent garden which she has grown this summer.

Mrs. Carter is an active member of the New Canaan Baptist Church which she serves as clerk.

Tomatoes have been rather plentiful all over the county this summer. There are many still ripening. I was given a sample of excellent tomato relish made by Mrs. Barbara Nichols, President of the Home Demonstration Club at Dutton. After repeated requests for the recipe, Mrs. Nichols finally made a new batch of relish just to be sure her guessing was correct. Here is the recipe, she has given us and I do hope you'll enjoy what you make as much as I did the sample Barbara gave me.

Ripe Tomato Relish
 1/2 bushel unpeeled tomatoes
 10 medium sized onions
 3 medium sized hot peppers
 2 cups sugar

2 cups vinegar
 3 tablespoons salt
 Peel tomatoes and cut in chunks. Drain off any juice and do not use. Peel onions and cut in small pieces. Slice hot peppers in small slices. Add sugar, vinegar, salt and mix all ingredients together in large pan or boiler. Cook over medium heat until thick. Stir while cooking to prevent sticking. It will take a long time to concentrate this thick. Another tip: If you like a hotter relish, add more pepper to suit individual taste. When thick pour while boiling hot into sterilized pint jars and seal. This will make 12 pints.

Jackson County School Lunch News

Fanny Sue Jones, Supervisor

I'm sure you are familiar with the commodity program for schools which was a part of the National School Lunch Act. The United States Department of Agriculture donates to school lunch programs agricultural commodities and other foods in as large quantities as is consistent with good program operations. This means that we often have large supplies of some food items on hand.

Our menus are planned to use as many of these commodities as possible. This is the reason that certain foods are repeated often in the menus. We are able to hold the price of the lunch down to a minimum through the wise use of these commodities. We try to vary the method of preparation so the child will not become tired of the same food being served too often.

The commodity program this year promises us a supply of dairy products, cheese, butter and non fat dry milk solids. Other foods are being added to this list as they become available. At the present we have received notices that we will receive dried lima beans, rice, canned cherries, canned English peas, cottonseed oil and cottonseed oil shortening.

Monday—1/2 pint whole milk, macaroni salad, oven fried okra, cornfield peas, sliced tomatoes, corn muffins, peanut butter cup cakes.

Tuesday—1/2 pint whole milk, meat loaf, tomato gravy, whipped potatoes, cabbage carrot slaw, hot rolls, butter, orange Spanish cream.

Wednesday—1/2 pint whole milk, buttered lima beans, turnip greens with boiled egg slices, corn on the cob, sliced tomatoes, corn muffins, pineapple pudding.

 Thursday—1/2 pint whole milk, barbecued weiners, scallop potatoes, buttered green beans, onion slices, corn muffins, gingerbread, orange sauce.
 Friday—1/2 pint whole milk, toasted cheese sandwich, vegetable soup, crackers, carrot sticks, apple cobbler, whipped topping.

STATE ASSESSMENT EQUALIZATION WOULD PRODUCE MANY MILLIONS

(Huntsville News)
At last the Alabama State Department of revenue seems to be doing something about the matter of equalizing property assessments throughout the state. It is expected that the program, which would equalize city governments with revenue about $77 million, will be additional revenue, and of the same kind, at least the bulk of the law will be followed.

Nothing in Alabama is more observed than the law that requires assessment of property at 50 per cent of its fair market value for ad valorem tax purposes. This law is so strict that a few years ago when an effort was made to require utilities to assess their property at 40 per cent of value, the courts ruled that such a figure was unreasonable and entirely out of line with general practice. The degree of assessment of the law varies markedly. In some sections, it is said, assessments pay average as low as 3 per cent of value.

The Revenue Department has had the authority to move toward equalization of assessments among the counties, even in county evaluation boards have power within the counties. But the state has not heretofore used that power. Now it has proposed a large-scale equalization plan, to be carried out over five years, aimed at bringing all assessments up to 40 per cent.

Local governments will benefit from such action more than will the state. Counties get approximately 50 percent of all income from the ad valorem tax. (The amount varies according to the local rates prevailing.) Of the total of $67 million annually expected to accrue eventually under the equalization program, the counties would get approximately $25 million, the cities $15 million and the state only $10 million.

Alabama is woefully behind other states in this matter of property tax. We are not straggling behind as we should and as states do in this matter of revenue.

Considering state and local revenues combined, Alabama gets 22.7 per cent of its income from the property tax, as contrasted with a percentage of all states of 24.7. Ohio is Alabama's distant lead in this respect, deriving 33.2 per cent of its revenue from the property tax, whereas the U. S. city percentage is 25.2. The discrepancy is equally great in regard to county revenues, with Alabama county governments getting 25.5 per cent from this source, and a national figure of 28.2 per cent.

Viewed from the standpoint of the individual tax burden, we find the Alabama paying a per cent of the property tax of $2500 annually, as compared with the U. S. figure of $625. Property tax expressed in terms of $1,000 resident income is $28.36 annually in Alabama and $9.36 in the nation. (These data, taken from a recent issue of University of Alabama Business News, are all related to the 1953 fiscal year.)

From various angles, therefore, Alabama's property tax is low, and is low largely because assessments have been run below the figure called for by law.

There has been some talk that the state should get out of the ad valorem field altogether. Currently the property tax brings in only about 3 per cent of the state's total revenue. However, state action seems necessary to bring about state-wide equalization. That is one good reason why the state should retain a financial interest in the property tax.

with long lines to buy them all have attracted attention.

The general financing has been reported by most of the houses to have no value, now missing at a general pace. But University City reported its survey showed that in the first six months the public in a whole still was financing only 28 per cent of the value of new cars brought on line.

In the first six months of the year, a total $2,000,000,000 in new cars were made. But these cars were used to buy only $1,000,000,000, indicating the buyers will be financing only 28 per cent of the total price of the cars through loans and banking with down payments of 22 per cent for the cars.

Good Credit Risk
Walter Lusk, president of Universal CTT, said Americans have proved very good credit risks in automobile purchases.

He said $2,000,000,000 of the $4,000,000,000 borrowed since the end of the war has been repaid almost with the other $2,000,000,000 he repaid at present. He said that while $2,000,000,000 in new loans were made in the first six months this year, the public was repaying $1,000,000,000 in previous loans.

During this year, he said, some 10,000,000 automobiles will finish being off their automobile loans. He said American consumers have illustrated by their willingness to pay in payment on installment automobiles, that they are excellent credit managers and make a useful contribution to our national economy.

He said automobile installment has declined in the 10 years since the war with auto production down the year ending, and 20 per cent of total production since 1945. He said credit sales have been responsible for a large share of the sales.

The program will give details on an on-the-spot view of their new $250,000 hospital facility. You are invited to turn your TV set to channel 12 Friday at 1:30 for the hospital story.

Baseball Tourney To Begin August 25

Smokey Says
CAREFUL! STOP ROAD RAGE!
It is the duty of every driver to drive safely and lawfully. Road rage is a dangerous and illegal behavior that can lead to serious accidents and injuries. Drivers should remain calm and courteous at all times, even in the face of aggressive driving. If you are involved in a road rage incident, do not retaliate. Instead, pull over safely and call the police. Remember, a moment's anger can cost lives.

CREDIT BOOM HASN'T HURT DOWN PAYMENT ON CARS
Detroit—Despite all the talk about "easy credit" in the booming automobile market, Americans buying cars on credit as a whole are making just as big down payments as they've done in the past 10 years, a survey of new car financing indicated today. The survey was made by universal CTT Credit Corp., New York, whose business is financing automobiles. It claims to be the largest independent automobile finance agency.

It reported it found that in the 10 years since the end of World War II, the American public has bought 207 million dollars' worth of new cars on time. Of this amount, 22 per cent was financed through down payments and the other 78 per cent financed.

The total amount of new cars financed during the last 10 months this year has been averaging at a record clip. A lot of the new, low downpayment deals

Livestock Market

The Board-Kennamer Livestock Market in Scottsboro reports their sale of August 22nd included 202 hogs and 18 head of cattle, with the sale amounting to $36,117.28.

During the past week the Nashville market reported 1800 lbs. cattle than they handled for the same period in 1954, however, prices are about steady with some weakness in steers and common cows. "THE CORN IS AS HIGH AS AN ELEPHANT'S EYE"

Well, Jackson County grows that tall corn the song is about in the play, "Oklahoma." This week Hugh Hall, who farms at Pisgah on Sand Mountain brought us a stalk of corn that measures 14 feet high and has three ears of corn on it, too, one near the very top. It is now standing up against the front of the Sentinel office and is worth seeing.

And to think that for years nobody seemed to believe that Sand Mountain would ever grow big corn!

DARLINGTON PRACTICE SPEEDS PICK UP

Darlington, S. C. — Joe Eshbanks, Spartanburg, S. C., last week set the second fastest lap speed in the history of the Darlington International Raceway when he shot his 1955 Oldsmobile over the mile and three-eighths course at 107.843 mph! Eshbanks, one of several drivers practicing for the Labor Day Southern 500 mile stock car race, declared he would be able to increase this speed at least three miles per hour. That would put the Oldsmobile well over Buck Baker's track record of 104.28 mph, set last year. One other mark was also set, Cullen Owens, also from Spartanburg, driving 100 miles non-stop in five tests, averaged 103.125. This indicates the racing field expects the 1955 Southern 500 to be run at the fastest rate in history. Owens was driving a 1955 Chevrolet.

Two more drivers signed up for the $20,000 event during the week between the 1955 to 1956 race. Three names, Fred Pharoah and Nash was added to the field making eleven names of automobiles now entered. Drivers already entered come from thirteen different states with several more expected before the first qualifying day, August 31. Newest entries in the Southern 500 are: Fred Johnson Bonds, N. C., 1953

Dodge; Harvey Eddle Duffin, Md., 1954 Nash; Jimmy McQuinn, Moore, N. C., 1955 Plymouth; Eddie Summer Youngman, Mo., 1953 Oldsmobile; Eddie Lee Swartz, N. C., 1954 Ford; John Lindsay Jersey City, N. J., 1955 Chevrolet; Charles Hanson Whitford, Md., 1955 Oldsmobile; Ray Flette Norfolk, Va., 1955 Chevrolet; Gordon Mangum Danville, Va., 1955 Chevrolet; Mike Gledhill St. Paul, Minn., 1955 Buick.

Jackson County Hospital Features Portable Oxygen Tent

Above picture shows the portable oxygen tent with the canopy over one of the beds to demonstrate its life saving ability. The portable unit can be plugged in right in the room and has many automatic devices that control its operation. Piped oxygen is just one of the many features of the new facility.

Important thought to keep in mind:

If you want to keep the new engine under the hood clean as it is today, use that great new Super-Refined Gulf NO-NOX—the clean-burning gasoline . . . and its super-refined teammate, new Gulfpride H.D. Select Motor Oil.

New Gulf No-Nox Gasoline delivers not just the highest octane but full working octane

because it's super-refined to burn clean

See what a difference Gulf super-refining makes. Gulf takes out the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline—at the refinery—to bring you new clean-burning Gulf NO-NOX.

NO GASOLINE, no matter how high the octane, will let your engine deliver full power performance—mile after mile—unless it burns clean. That's why it pays to always use new NO-NOX. Gulf NO-NOX is the clean-burning fuel that gives you full working octane day in, day out. In addition, you get . . .

- more complete engine protection
- extra gas mileage in short-trip, stop-and-go driving
- freedom from vapor-lock and engine stalling
- no knock, no pre-ignition—even in today's high-compression engines

Now! For the ultimate in working octane performance, always use Gulf's super-refined gas-oil team... New Gulf No-Nox Gasoline and

New Gulfpride H.D. Select Motor Oil

The only motor oil super-refined by the Akhlor Process for modern high-compression engines.

- Controls carbon
- Combats corrosive acids, rust and deposits

Assures lower oil consumption
 Provides the toughest protective film ever developed in a motor oil

FARM CREDIT ACT BIG HELP TO FEDERAL LOANS

The 1955 Farm Credit Act broadens and improves services of the Federal Land Bank, according to O. M. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the United National Farm Loan Association. Mr. Johnson this week gave a gist of the new Act as follows:

The limit on the size of a Federal Land Bank loan was raised from $100,000 to $200,000. Loans now made may be made in amounts ranging from $100 up to the top limit but not in excess of 65 percent of the appraised normal value of the farm offered as security for the loan.

Farming corporations are made eligible for land bank loans in the same manner as now provided for "livestock corporations."

In order to attempt to bring the discussion of space travel and the planning of satellites a bit closer down to earth, at least for interested people in Scottsboro, the Huntsville Center will offer this fall the first time a course in astronomy.

Astronomy I, which will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 8:00 p.m., will cover the study of the earth and its motions, the solar system, stars, nebulae and galaxies and constellations. Conrad Swanson, chief of the Interior Ballistics Section, Rocket Development Division, Redstone Arsenal, will teach the course.

Mr. Swanson comes well prepared. A master of arts in physics and astronomy, University of California at Berkeley, Mr. Swanson has taught astronomy at the University of California and at Pasadena City College and Oakland Polytechnical College. He has made special studies in the composition and characteristics of meteorites. He is a member of the American Rocket Society.

Mr. Swanson and Center Director Philip Mason are making plans for several field trips in addition to the regular lecture series. Two trips to the Nashville Observatory are being contemplated.

Astronomy is a two credit hour course. No prerequisites are required. Anyone who has an interest in the heavens is welcome each Monday and Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Watch your subscription label if out, please renew at once.

More than 50 entries from Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee have been listed this week for the third annual running of the "Plug Horse Derby." Jones said. The event is sponsored by the Chattanooga Sertoma Club for its tri-state camp fund for deserving boys.

The racing program includes six runs for plug horses (any mix not a thoroughbred), races for small and large ponies, small and large mules, and one for donkeys or burros of all sizes. Prizes will be $100 for these races and $250 for the grand derby run, divided to three places.

Attendance prizes total $1,875 in savings bonds for six winners, with a $1,000 certificate for the first award, Jones announced.

A derby queen will be named from a list of over 40 high school and community beauties. Late entries may be addressed to Mrs. Curtis Swift, 714 South Sweetbrier Ave., Chattanooga.

Joe Engel, boss of the Chattanooga Lookouts, is honorary chairman of the derby. Mayor P. R. Oligant of Chattanooga and Hamilton County Judge Wilkes T. Thrasher are honorary stewards.

FARM CREDIT ACT BIG HELP TO FEDERAL LOANS

The 1955 Farm Credit Act broadens and improves services of the Federal Land Bank, according to O. M. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the United National Farm Loan Association. Mr. Johnson this week gave a gist of the new Act as follows:

The limit on the size of a Federal Land Bank loan was raised from $100,000 to $200,000. Loans now made may be made in amounts ranging from $100 up to the top limit but not in excess of 65 percent of the appraised normal value of the farm offered as security for the loan.

Farming corporations are made eligible for land bank loans in the same manner as now provided for "livestock corporations."

Jackson County Hospital celebrates 50 years

By MAZIE ALDRICH

It was a day for the citizens of Jackson County to be proud. They stood tall as the newest and most modern hospital officially opened its doors.

Jackson County Hospital was dedicated August 28, 1955. The Jackson County Hospital Board was organized in 1951 under provisions in a law called the Hill-Burton Act. The Hill-Burton Act of 1946 was introduced in Congress by Congressman Lister Hill of Alabama's Second District. Hill entered law practice in Montgomery in 1916 and was elected Congressman for the Second District at the young age of 28. His father, one of the south's most distinguished surgeons, probably influenced his works and landmark legislation in the field of public health. The Hill-Burton Act authorizes assistance to public and other nonprofit medical facilities such as acute care general hospitals, special hospitals, nursing homes, public health centers, and rehabilitation facilities. To receive Hill-Burton funds, health care facilities must provide services to persons residing in the facility's service area without discrimination on the basis of race, color, national origin, creed or any other ground unrelated to the individual's need for the service.

Hill was a guest speaker at the formal opening of the hospital on the day. His tireless efforts were said to have paved the road for such a modern facility.

Jackson County Hospital 1955

Members of the original Jackson County Hospital Board included Dr. E. Julian Hodges, Chairman, Dr. M.H. Lynch, Vice Chairman, Joe Dawson, Secretary-Treasurer, G.F. Browning, Jr., John B. Talley, Judge John Snodgrass, Dr. E. A. Browder, Dr. E.L. Trammell, H.O. Bynum and

Ralph Hart, Hospital Administrator. The board was a non-political group who served with no pay and with only the interest of the health and welfare of all residents of Jackson County at heart.

The residents of the county understood the need for the new facility and voted for a four mill ad valorem tax. The tax was specifically for the purpose of building and equipping hospitals and caring for the medically indigent patients of Jackson County. The work of the board and backing of the general public was an acknowledgment.

The operating room, as well as recovery room were equipped with the most modern medical equipment of the day. Telephones were available in patient rooms upon request.

A 15,000 watt auxiliary power plant was installed in case of power failure. The brick exterior had a 36-inch concrete canopy that protected all rooms from bright sunlight and rain. The front of the building was designed to enable cars to enter underneath the front portion of the building to load or unload patients or visitors in rainy weather.

The headline of the day read "5,000 Attended Dedication of the New Hospital." The sun was said to be broiling that day. The best laid plans for the dedication had many seeking the shelter of shade from the nearest tree.

Congressman Bob Jones introduced keynote speaker, Senator Lister Hill as the author of the TVA program. Hill praised Jackson County residents for their untiring support of TVA and spoke of the good things that have happened to the area since the beginning of the program. The hospital and rural telephone service for farmers were just a couple of the many advantages of TVA.

Keys for the facility were presented to Hospital Administrator, Ralph Hart. Miss Jesse Bynum cut the ribbon that officially opened the hospital doors for patients and visitors.

edgment of the need for such a facility. The Jackson County Hospital was located on Woods Cove Road on seven acres of property in the southwest part of Scottsboro. The property was donated by H. O. Bynum and children in honor of the memory of Lora V. Bynum, wife to H.O. Bynum. The property was valued at $10,000 and considered beautiful. Rooms were planned to have a mountain view in any direction. The seven acres was more than adequate for the building and any future expansions that may be needed. The geographical location was considered accessible to all residents of the area.

Bids were let for the construction in August 1954. The building was designed by Charles H. McCamley, an architect in Birmingham. Construction Engineers, Inc., of Jasper, Alabama was awarded the bid for construction.

The county, state and federal government shared in the cost of the facility. Federal funds of $326,530.90; state funds of $60,000 and county funds of $168,469.10; for a total of $555,000 afforded the newest of equipment in the 35 bed facility.

With segregation still an issue in the south, the hospital held separate rooms and nurseries for whites and blacks. The original plan called for 11 private rooms for whites and two for blacks, for eight two-bed (semi-private) rooms for whites and three two-bed rooms (semi-private) for blacks. The new private deluxe patient rooms were compared to the Waldorf Astoria in beauty. The white nursery held 10 bassinets, the black nursery held four bassinets.

The building was the south's first fully air-conditioned facility under the Hill-Burton Act. Walls were decorated with a

The operating room, as well as recovery room were equipped with the most modern medical equipment of the day. Telephones were available in patient rooms upon request.

A 15,000 watt auxiliary power plant was installed in case of power failure. The brick exterior had a 36-inch concrete canopy that protected all rooms from bright sunlight and rain. The front of the building was designed to enable cars to enter underneath the front portion of the building to load or unload patients or visitors in rainy weather.

The headline of the day read "5,000 Attended Dedication of the New Hospital." The sun was said to be broiling that day. The best laid plans for the dedication had many seeking the shelter of shade from the nearest tree.

Congressman Bob Jones introduced keynote speaker, Senator Lister Hill as the author of the TVA program. Hill praised Jackson County residents for their untiring support of TVA and spoke of the good things that have happened to the area since the beginning of the program. The hospital and rural telephone service for farmers were just a couple of the many advantages of TVA.

Keys for the facility were presented to Hospital Administrator, Ralph Hart. Miss Jesse Bynum cut the ribbon that officially opened the hospital doors for patients and visitors.

were parked as far away as downtown Scottsboro. Many gave up without seeing the inside of the hospital and were allowed to tour it the following Monday night. Tour groups were led by the newly formed Hospital Auxiliary. It was a day of handshakes and congratulatory remarks, a day that made residents of Jackson County proud.

The first baby born in the new facility came quickly Thursday, September 1, 1955, at 7:25 a.m. Connie Dianne Pickett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pickett of Dutton, arrived. The Picketts were awarded several hundreds of dollars worth of gifts provided by the merchants of Jackson County for having the first baby born at the new facility. The bill was paid in full by the hospital as part of the celebration. Just a few hours later, the second baby arrived to Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Harless, a girl, named Rita.

The Hospital Auxiliary was formed August 11, just weeks before the grand opening of Jackson County Hospital. The group consisted of approximately 75 women of Jackson County who went about the hospital helping nurses and aides any way possible to make a patient's stay a little brighter.

Officers of the Auxiliary were Mrs. Robert Word, president; Mrs. Myron Gardner, first vice-president; Mrs. M.H. Lynch, second vice president; Miss Jessie Sue Bynum, secretary; Mrs. Joe Dawson, treasurer. Board members were Mrs. John Will Gay, Jr., as chairman; Mrs. Carlos Kenamer, Mrs. Jack McCord; Mrs. J. K. Thompson; Mrs. Charles Heath; Mrs. Mary Brewer and Mrs. C.O. Reed.

Each member of the Auxiliary pledged to volunteer at least two hours per week at the Jackson County Hospital.

Jackson County Hospital offers high-tech patient-friendly health care

Jackson County Hospital (JCH), a 170-bed facility, is the flagship of Jackson County Health Care Authority (JCHCA). JCH provides state-of-the-art services through The Imaging Center, The Maternity Center, The Sleep Center, Surgical Services, Lithotripsy, Occupational Medicine Services, Rehabilitation Services, North Alabama Sports Center, Home Health and Cardiorespiratory Care. JCHCA services include Jackson County Nursing Home, North Jackson Nursing Home and JCH Ambulance Services.

JCH was the first facility in northeast Alabama to utilize the world's most precise "cat" scan technology.

The Aquilion Computed Tomography (CT) System from Toshiba America Medical

Systems offers better image quality, shorter exam times, earlier detection of abnormalities that may not have been seen by conventional CT, reduced X-ray exposure and a safe alternative to invasive diagnostic procedures.

The Emergency Room at JCH takes care of approximately 18,000 patients annually. The ER length of stay at JCH is 20 percent below the national average.

Forty-two doctors represent the Medical Staff at JCH. Specialties include Allergy, Anesthesiology, Diagnostic Radiology, Ear, Nose and Throat - Otolaryngology, Emergency Medicine, Family Practice, Immunotherapy, Internal Medicine, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Orthopedics, Pathology, Pediatrics, Surgery and Urology. Dr. Paul Megehee, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Dr. Janet Green, Family Practice, and Dr. Steve Green, Internal Medicine, are the newest members of the JCH Medical Staff.

Here is a look at services available through JCH and Jackson County Healthcare Authority:

The Maternity Center at JCH

The Maternity Center at JCH offers mothers and their families a state-of-the-art, home-like atmosphere for life's most anticipated arrival. Modern, tastefully decorated birthing suites and post-partum rooms ensure that mothers enjoy the benefits of a private room throughout their hospital stay. The spacious suites are designed with the entire family in mind.

Hearing screenings for all newborns are performed before the baby leaves the hospital. This is extremely important, since hearing loss is the most common disability at birth. JCH also offers several education classes for mothers and their families. Childbirth class sessions last seven weeks. Childbirth classes are free to mothers delivering at JCH. A one-night sibling class is also scheduled as needed. Breastfeeding classes are also scheduled as needed. For more information on any of these

A C-section room is available just down the hall from the birthing suites. This provides the infant and the mother with a level of safety from continuous instrument monitoring that would not be possible if the C-section room were on another floor.

The Sleep Center at JCH

Are you a middle-aged male? Are you a male with a collar size of 17 inches or more? Are you a post-menopausal female? If you answered yes to any of these questions, then your odds of needing the services of The Sleep Center at JCH are greater than average.

The Sleep Center diagnoses a wide variety of sleeping disorders, including sleep apnea, insomnia, narcolepsy, periodic limb movements (PLM), rest-

The Imaging Center at JCH

The Imaging Center at JCH offers Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), Computed Tomography (CT), Ultrasound, Nuclear Medicine and X-ray.

With the Aquilion Computed Tomography System from Toshiba America Medical Systems, exam times drop from minutes to seconds, and more accurate diagnoses result. The new multi-slice CT system (also called a C-AT scanner) yields more precise images of bones and level of scrutiny that our radiologists and technologists receive during this process makes me especially proud of our accreditation ranking."

JCH has implemented digital diagnostic software for its electroencephalogram (EEG) testing and electroencephalogram (EEG) equipment. This software enhances diagnoses for carpal tunnel syndrome, peripheral neuropathy, ulnar nerve compression syndrome and epilepsy, among other conditions.

Lithotripsy - busting kidney stones

The most common, non-invasive form of relief for substantial kidney stones can be found at JCH. It is called extracorporeal shock wave lithotripsy.

Lithotripsy uses high energy shock waves to pulverize and shatter kidney stones in the kidney.

The Imaging Center at JCH was the first hospital-based facility in northeast Alabama to introduce ultrasound services. JCH recently enhanced its ultrasound technology with two new Philips High Definition Imaging systems. The ultrasound systems feature 3-D imaging and SonoCT, which provides enhanced diagnostic confidence for your ultrasound exams.

The Imaging Center at JCH is accredited for MRI and ultrasound from the American College of Radiology. Both the MRI and ultrasound accreditation programs evaluate qualifications of physicians, clinical personnel, equipment performance, effectiveness of quality control measures and quality of clinical images.

"These are primary factors that impact the quality of patient care," said Brenda Lusk, Director of The Imaging Center at JCH. "The ney or upper urinary tract. An X-ray is taken to determine the exact location of the stones. The focused shock waves are then passed through the body until they strike the dense stones. Once the stones have been disintegrated into sand-like particles, they are more easily passed through the ureter and out of the body in the urine. This occurs over several weeks.

"This procedure is a highly effective way for the body to rid itself of kidney stones," said Dr. Darryl Britt, an Urologist on the medical staff at JCH. "At least 80 percent of kidney stone patients previously diagnosed for surgery can now be successfully treated with lithotripsy."

Lithotripsy is typically performed on an outpatient basis and eliminates the need for lengthy hospital stays and extensive recovery periods associated with surgery.

JCH uses the Dormier Compact Delta, provided by UroTech, as its lithotripsy technology. The Dormier Compact Delta is universally acclaimed in academic circles as the "gold standard" in lithotripsy. Research has confirmed that the Compact Delta provides the lowest retreatment rate and highest stone-free rate of any lithotripter. It can treat all types of renal and ureteral stones.

The Compact Delta is commonly used to retreat patients who have been unsuccessfully treated with other second-generation equipment. For more information about lithotripsy services at JCH, please call 218.3743.

Nursing Homes
JCHCA operates two nursing homes - 100-bed North Jackson Nursing Home in Bridgeport and 50-bed Jackson County Nursing Home in Scottsboro. North Jackson Nursing Home, built in 1992, is located in a scenic setting in northeast

Alabama in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains. North Jackson Nursing Home currently provides medical/nursing services, rehabilitation, physical therapy, speech therapy, respiratory therapy and Alzheimer's care. "We are very proud of the quality of care that we provide," said Robin Bradford, Administrator at Jackson County Nursing Home. "We create a real 'home' for our residents, in every sense of the word. We have a very dedicated staff." A popular activity among Jackson County Nursing Home residents is the "Take Me to the Sunshine" therapy program. Residents are divided into groups, and activities are organized around the nursing home's sunroom to ensure that residents' social needs are met. The program has been recognized in the "Best Practices" competition sponsored by the Alabama Nursing Home Association. "We try to come up with creative and ingenious ideas to improve the quality of care in nursing homes," Bradford said. "Our 'Take Me to the Sunshine' program makes a difference in the quality of life for our residents."

Ambulance Service
JCHCA has been the sole provider of ambulance services in Jackson County since 1992. Ambulance stations are located in Scottsboro, Bridgeport, Pisgah and Skyline. JCHCA ambulances answer more than 500 calls each month. Average response times throughout the county, calculated as the time elapsed between receiving the emergency call and arriving at the scene, are less than 10 minutes. The value of this response time is magnified further, when compared to the 18-minute national rural average for response times.
