

Scottsboro City Elementary School

School District: 88

1908-1909

With the establishing of the public high school in the former Baptist Institute building, the citizens of Scottsboro had no building for primary and elementary instruction. The town council responded to this situation by having a six room school building constructed on Charlotte Avenue. The instructional program for both schools was under the supervision of the county superintendent of education.

1909, September 18

The Jackson County Board of Education changed the boundary of District 88 to include several small districts near Scottsboro. This was the first of several consolidations that, over the years, increased the enrollment of the Scottsboro City School.

KIDDIES POUR INTO SCHOOL

Buildings Taxed to Their Utmost Capacity—Enrollment Reaches 208

Scottsboro's city school opened its 1914-15 term Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Just 208 waiting and eager faces greeted the faculty and numerous visitors.

That the school is an absolute necessity for the young of our city and that they are eager to receive instruction is certainly borne out in the fact that the building is taxed beyond its capacity. The system, however, is thoroughly organized, and while it has not been possible to provide new buildings, every child will be cared for.

Last term the attendance was 251, that an increase of 27, which is expected to be increased even more. When it is remembered that 100 pupils crowd a building of this size, it will be seen that the attendance is increasing sufficiently to fill another new building.

In the primary grades the one of the hardest problems. Individuals are that the number of new pupils for the first grade will exceed by a good margin the attendances of last year. Crowded conditions exist in the second, third and fourth grades.

The staff of teachers and employees furnish a public school system equal to that of any other town of this size. With this in view, notwithstanding the fact that this was a most successful year, we look forward to this year being even more successful in every way.
